The Reported Triple Alliance Against the United States.

Our Relations with Spain—The Cuban Question.

The Rumored Recall of Minister Morris from Turkey.

Reorganization of the Special Mail Service.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, May 13.

No official news whatever, by cable or mail, has been received here to-day relative to the rumored triple alliance. The more the whole subject is canvassed in diplomatic circles, the less importance is attached to it. It is felt in official circles here that, however disposed either England or France may be to assume a dictatorial policy toward the United States, neither one nor the other is in a position at present to take such a course. Besides, the internal relations of England, France and Spain to each respectively are such as to render the probability of an alliance against the United States or any other country extremely doubtful. France is by no means satisfied with the condition of Spain and the tendencies of the dominant party in that country. As is well known, the Spaniards have been looking for a King for some time, and the only available one appeared to be MONTPENSIER. His elevation to the throne of Spain would be almost an insult and a menace to NAPOLEON, being nothing less than a restoration of a part of the Louis Phillippe family; and besides, the sympathies of Spain at present appear to be more republican than monarchical. Then again, so far as England and Spain are concerned, notwithstanding the Cuban filibustering expeditions, the feeling between this country and Spain is much more cordial, and far better understanding exists between us internationally, than between Great Britain and Spain. England has very recently made the strongest remonstrances which can be made, short of a declaration of war, to Spain against the seizure of one of her corvettes and crew, in British waters and on British territory. The Mary Lowell case has also been dexterously thrown on English responsibility by our Secretary of State, which raises an additional complication. The United States and Spain are at the present time on better and closer relations than they have been in many years. Mr. ROMERO, the Spanish Minister to this country, has expressed no official dissatisfaction at the course of the United States, so far as Cuba is concerned, and is perfectly satisfied that the Administration, however, individually, it may sympathise with the Cuban cause, will do nothing derogatory to the honor of the United States as a member of the family of nations. Our neutrality laws, which are the strictest of any nation in the world, have been and will be rigidly enforced. Indeed, a revenue cutter is now lying alongside of the Quaker City, in the Harbor of New-York, which, within the last few days, has raised the English flag, and changed her name to that of the Columbia. But notwithstanding this, she will not be allowed to sail until she has removed every suspicious circumstance connected with her. But there is nothing to prevent her getting a clearance for some foreign port and sailing for Cuba. She would merely forfeit her policy of insurance. This the United States cannot and will not control. There are many other reasons which will readily suggest themselves to the most cursory newspaper reader, bearing on the internal policy of Europe generally, which preclude the possibility of this triple alliance. The opinion in well-informed circles here is general that this combination, in the very nature of things, is an impossibility at the present time.

THE REPORTED RECALL OF MINISTER MORRIS.

There is official authority for the statement that the dispatch announcing that the President has determined to recall Minister MORRIS from Turkey has no foundation. In fact the subject of his recall has not even been considered since the adjournment of Congress, and the whole story has been concocted in the interest of some one who wants Mr. MORRIS' place.

SPECIAL MAIL SERVICE.

Postmaster-General CRESWELL has reorganized the whole special mail service of the country. The previous appropriation for the purpose has been $100,000. This year it is only $100,000, which has required the reduction of a number of agents. Applications for these positions have been almost innumerable. The country is divided into six divisions; each division is divided into three districts, except the first, which has but two, and the sixth, which has six. Each division has a principal officer styled Assistant Superintendent of the Railway Mail Service, who is responsible for the Post Office affairs of the whole division, and reports directly to the Postmaster-General. Each district has a Post Office Inspector, and each division a special agent to investigate mail degredations. There are, in addition, three special agents at large. The following are the appointments to this service:

First Division—New-England States.—Superintendent Railway Service, Thomas P. Cheney, New-Hampshire; Inspectors—First District, W. C. Hammett; Second District, R. H. Camp, Connecticut; Mail Depredations—Rufus R. Wade, Massachusetts. Second Division—New-York, Pennsylvania, New-Jersey, Maryland and Delaware, and Eastern Shore of Virginia.—Superintendent Railway Service, Roswell Hart, Rochester, N. Y.; Inspectors—First District, Israel McDonald, Elmira, N. Y.; Second District, Harry C. Hopkins, Lancaster, Penn.; Third District, Jas. T. Wagner, Baltimore; Mail Depredations—Jas. Cayler, New-York; E. E. Fetherbridge, Baltimore; Jas. McPhail, Maryland, resident agent at Washington. Third Division—Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.—Superintendent Railway Service, C. J. Frenchevye; Inspectors—First District, John Frey; Third District, H. R. Myers, others not made. Fourth Division—Ohio, West Virginia, Michigan (excluding Upper Peninsula,) Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee.—Superintendent Railway Service, Colonel A. H. Markland, Kentucky; Inspectors—First District, W. O. Goodloe, Lexington, Ky.; Second District, C. F. Baldwin; Third District, Charles Reddell; Mail Depredations—P. C. Pendleton. Fifth Division—Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Upper Peninsula Michigan—Superintendent Railway Service, George S. Bangs, Illinois; Inspectors First District, E. C. David, Iowa, and E. H. Kennedy; Third District, Schawite, Arkansas; Mail Depredations—A. G. A. Miller. Sixth Division—Kansas, Texas, California, Oregon and the Territories.—Inspectors only appointed. First District, A. M. Hobbs, Texas, and George H. Hoyt, Kansas; Third District, J. H. Wicklicer, Illinois; Fourth District, Milton B. Duffield, New-Mexico; Fifth District, James E. Underwood, Oregon; Sixth District, Alfred Barstow, California. Special Agents at Large—Jas. S. Board, Money Order Service; Jos. W. Briggs, Letter Carrier System.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE COLORED MEN.

A delegation of colored men, comprising the Committee recently appointed by the National Convention of colored men in this city, headed by GEORGE T. DOWNING, waited on the President to-day, for the purpose of laying before him questions relating to the interests of colored men throughout the country. They read an address, in which they alluded to reports that colored men would not be appointed to office in other sections than the South, and asked that the same privileges of citizenship be extended to that class in one section as in another. They were assured that the rights of the colored people had been and would be duly considered, not as colored people, or as forming any distinct political class, but as citizens of a common country, who were to be tested by their merits and conduct, without regard to race or color. Many of the colored people—and this feeling seemed manifest among some to-day—are pressing their demand for recognition in the matter of office seemingly on the ground that they are colored. The President has fully recognized their right to hold office by appointing eight or ten of them to good positions. That being done, they can only ask for positions on the same ground that other men do—that of merit, capacity and loyalty, color being no bar, other things being equal.

OUR CONSUL AT SOUTHAMPTON.

Mr. WILLIAM THOMPSON, Consul to Southampton, has satisfied the President and the Secretary of State that the charges against him are untrue, and will consequently be commissioned. The whole case has been investigated by the State Department, and the affidavits which are published in the English correspondence of a New-York paper of this morning are met and refuted by counter depositions equally strong and irrefutable.

THE CONSULAR COMMISSIONS.

All the Consular commissions have been made out, with the exception of the two or three which have been kept back for some minor causes. In these instances the bondsmen of the appointees, and those who recommended them, have asked for a little delay in order that some personal matters may be satisfactorily explained.

NEW-YORK COLLECTORSHIP.

The contest over the Collectorship of the First New-York District is still undecided. Messrs. EVERETT and HAWKINS, the contestants, are both here, and it is probable that no action will be taken until the arrival of Governor FENTON, who is expected to-morrow. The Department has strong evidence of the insufficiency of the bond first tendered by Mr. EVERETT, but the latter maintains his readiness to furnish unexceptionable surety, and that the bondsmen offered are good and sufficient.

TONNAGE DUES.

The discrimination in the matter of tonnage which has existed against United States vessels loading in the Spanish colonial ports in the West Indies, by which they were charged higher tonnage rates than ships of any other country, was done away with to-day through the efforts of Mr. LYNCH, of Maine, whose constituents are largely interested in that trade. Secretary BOUTWELL to-day issued a circular letter to Collectors, instructing them to admit Spanish vessels on the same footing with American vessels, according to the act of last March. The tonnage duties of our vessels arriving in Cuba will, in future, be reduced from $2.35 to $1.35.

THE PRESIDENT'S HEALTH.

Some absurd stories are afloat concerning the President's health, and it is represented that the pressure upon him is resulting to his injury physically. The pressure is indeed very great, and it is of a character such as General GRANT has never before endured or encountered, as well as being calculated to wear upon the nerves and physical forces. But the President's self-control and even temperament are more than a match for it. On being asked to-day as to the state of his health, he replied that it was never better; that it had always been his ambition to weigh one hundred and fifty pounds; and that he now exceeded that figure.

THE QUESTION OF APPOINTMENTS.

The demand from Senators and Representatives for geographical recognition in the matter of appointments leads to much annoyance, and very often to weak and improper selections. In one view it has much force, to wit: Provided all other considerations are met. But this demand is strongly pressed, especially by members from the South, where it is more difficult to make a proper selection than anywhere else. They complain that they do not get their share, are not recognized, &c. But the fact is, that they really get more than the material they furnish deserves.

MISS KELLOGG.

Miss KELLOGG's notes are at a discount in Washington. She sang last night at Wall's Opera House to a moderate audience, having failed to appear Monday night at the theatre. The proprietors of the theatre over that $2,000 worth of her notes belong to them, and have accordingly entered suit for that amount against STRAKOSCH for breach of contract.

PERSONAL.

Mr. KING, the present Consul at Belfast, Ireland, will, on the recommendation of Senator ANTHONY, be transferred to Cork. Dr. REA, the gentleman nominated and confirmed as Consul at Belfast, has been commissioned for that place.

It is stated that Baron STOECKEL, the Russian Minister, was recalled at his own request. It is believed here that he will represent his Government at the Hague, it being his desire to serve his country nearer home.

Senator POMEROY and family left last evening for Kansas via New-York, Boston and Montreal. At the latter place Mr. POMEROY will ship an importation of blooded cattle to his prairie farm. He reports a large emigration to Kansas this Spring, and especially a large and gratifying increase in the efforts to improve and increase the stock-breeding interests of the State. Grazing promises to be one of its chief interests.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, May 13.

BREVET COMMISSIONS.

The following is a copy of the opinion of the Attorney-General, in reply to a question of the Secretary of War concerning brevet commissions to officers in the Indian wars:

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OFFICE, TREASURY DEPARTMENT, April 24, 1869.

Hon. John A. Rawlins, Secretary of War:

SIR: The second section of the act of March 1, 1869, entitled "An act to amend the act of 1866 for establishing rules and articles for the government of the armies of the United States," declares that hereafter commissions by brevet shall only be conferred in time of war, and for distinguished conduct and public service in the presence of the enemy, and that all brevet commissions shall bear date from the particular action or service for which the officer was brevetted. Two days after this law took effect, (on the 3d of March, 1869,) the Senate confirmed the nominations of a number of officers to promotion by brevet, which had been pending before that body prior to the date of the act. Among those were some that had been made on account of services rendered in recent engagements with the Indians in each of which the date of the promotion corresponded with that of the service mentioned. The question which you submit is, whether under the terms of the law cited these latter officers are now entitled to the commissions by brevet heretofore intended for them, and whether by its terms officers not of this class are now excluded from brevet promotions. With regard to the latter branch of this question, it is very clear that if the officers referred to were not nominated for brevet promotion by reason of distinguished conduct and public service in the face of the enemy, they cannot now be commissioned by brevet. The circumstance that their nominations were pending before the Senate prior to the date of the act, does not relieve them from its operations. These nominations were not appointments. To constitute the latter required the issue of commissions in pursuance of the previous nominations after confirmation thereof by the Senate; but the authority to commission in these cases was, it appears, swept away by the statute even before such confirmation was made. It would seem, however, that the other nominations mentioned, which were made and confirmed for meritorious service in recent engagements with the Indians, are within the act, and that consistently with its provisions brevet commissions may be issued to the officer designated therein. The only point which suggests itself in connection with this branch of the subject is, whether promotions made during Indian hostilities may be viewed as conferred in time of war in the meaning of the law. That Indian tribes are capable of maintaining peace and war with the United States is recognized in numerous treaties made with them, and accordingly where hostilities break out between any of these tribes and the Government, a state of war with propriety may be said to exist. Indeed, such hostilities have been so described by the Legislature. Thus the act of April 20, 1818, third section, 1845 [illegible] provision for the pay of militia, called into service in prosecuting the war with the Seminole tribe of Indians; so that brevet promotions made during the existence of Indian hostilities, for distinguished service in the presence of the enemy, are to be deemed as made in time of war, within the meaning of the statute.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
(Signed,) E. R. HOAR, Attorney-General.

FRAUDULENT TOBACCO STAMPS.

Acting Commissioner DOUGLAS has written a letter to the Collector at Henderson, N. C., in reply to a letter informing him that parties in Raleigh have been selling tobacco stamps, and that he had caused the arrest of one of them for selling fraudulent tobacco stamps, &c. In reply the Acting Commissioner says:

"The selling of false, fraudulent, forged or counterfeited stamps is made an offence punishable by a fine and imprisonment, under the Internal Revenue act of 1864, as amended by the acts of 1866 and 1868; but the stamps sold in Raleigh are claimed to be and are genuine Government stamps. The law does not, in so many words, in direct terms prohibit the sale of stamps by persons other than Collectors, or the purchase of such stamps from persons other than Collectors. It was however clearly the intention of Congress to limit the sale and purchase of tobacco stamps to and from a Collector of Internal Revenue. The Commissioner, according to the provisions of the law, is authorized to furnish stamps only to Collectors, who are the only persons authorized to sell stamps. The sale of stamps by any other person is an unauthorized sale; and even Collectors are restricted in their sales. They cannot sell to any one, but only to manufacturers, importers, and such other persons as are required by law to affix stamps to unstamped goods before selling or offering them for sale. Collectors are held accountable for all the stamps intrusted to them, and are required to give an account not only of the value of such stamps, but also of the disposition which they make of them. The number, amount and denominate values sold by him to each manufacturer and to other persons described, are to be recorded by him. No Collector can sell to a manufacturer out of his own district, unless such manufacturer has given the bond required by law. The Acting Commissioner concludes as follows: The spirit, if not the letter of the law, is clearly violated by every person other than a Collector who sells or offers for sale tobacco or cigar stamps. Such stamps are not legitimate articles of traffic, and as selling and buying are concurrent conditions of one transaction, it follows that the purchasing of stamps from any other person than a Collector is an illegal transaction, and if not punishable as a misdemeanor, it is a reprehensible act, to be condemned and discountenanced. The selling of stamps by any person other than Collectors is a violation of the 67th section of the act of July, 1866. If the sale is made by a manufacturer of tobacco or cigars, he may be liable to the penalty imposed by the 86th section of the same act. If the sale of stamps is made by persons other than manufacturers as above, the law has not provided any specific penalty. In such cases, however, the person so selling would be arrested, on the presumption in all such cases is true reliable, that the stamps sold or offered for sale by the persons unauthorized and forbidden to sell are false, forged, fraudulent, spurious or counterfeit."

DISCONTINUANCE OF LIGHT STATIONS.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury the following-named light stations will be discontinued from and after the 30th day of June, 1869:

Brant Point Beacon Light, situated about 200 feet in front of the Brant Point Lighthouse, Nantucket Harbor, Mass.; Old Point Comfort Beacon Light, on the southwest point of Old Point Comfort, Va.; Bay Point Light, Port Royal Entrance, S. C.; the beacon at the east end of the bay in the City of Savannah, Ga. The light vessel now stationed at Fishing Rip, in main ship channel, Port Royal Entrance, South Carolina, will, on the 15th day of May, 1869, be withdrawn from that station. She will be immediately transferred to Tybee Island Knoll, in Savannah River, and will, on the evening of the 1st of June, and thenceforth until further orders, exhibit a light at an elevation of 30 feet above the sea level, and should be visible in clear weather from a distance of ten nautical miles.

The Voyage of the Great Western—Card from the Passengers.

NEW-YORK, Thursday, May 13.

The undersigned Committee in behalf of the passengers of the ship Great Western, on her recent voyage from Liverpool to this port, thus publicly thank Captain CUNNINGHAM and his officers for their kindness and attention during the short but severe passage we have experienced. Especially are our thanks due Mr. THOS. WARBURTON for his bravery in rescuing our fellow-passenger from a watery grave, by jumping overboard after him at the risk of his own life; also to Mr. MUNSON, surgeon, for valuable assistance rendered Mr. WARBURTON in the above instance, and attention and skill throughout.

(Signed,) JAMES GRAY, JOHN GRAY,
JAMES JAMES, G. F. MOSS,
JAS. E. PARKER, W. T. FARRIS,
Committee in behalf of 620 others.

Card from Warren and Costello.

The following card has been issued by the released Fenian prisoners in reference to a proposed reception mooted by private individuals:

NEW-YORK, May 13, 1869.

To the Citizens of New-York:

The undersigned have seen to-day, for the first time, a circular announcing a public reception to be given them at Cooper Institute on to-morrow (Friday) evening, signed AMBREY A. GRIFFIN, Chairman. As it was the intention of the authorities of the State and City to welcome us as citizens whose liberties and rights had been outraged by a foreign Government, we will not recognize any faction or party.

The gentlemen who issued the call have not received our sanction or consent, and we do not recognize their right to use our names. If at any time the civil authorities, with our united fellow-citizens, conclude to carry out the spirit of resolutions already adopted by the Common Council, on proper notification of the same we shall be happy, and consider it our duty, to cooperate with them in demonstrating the respect to American citizenship. JOHN WARREN,
AUGUSTINE E. COSTELLO.

The Irish Troubles—Debate in the House of Lords—The Irish Church Bill.

LONDON, Thursday, May 13—Midnight.

In the House of Lords, this evening, Earl RUSSELL inquired what plan the Government proposed to adopt for putting a stop to the outrages which had lately been so frequent in Ireland. He followed his inquiry with some remarks, in which he deprecated the land scheme of Mr. BRIGHT as likely to unsettle the Irish people. He called upon the Government to discountenance all visionary schemes, and state clearly what it intended to do.

Earl GRANVILLE, the Colonial Secretary, regretted continual recurrence at the present time to this topic. He said the Government was not prepared to state its policy, nor was he authorized to give an opinion on Mr. BRIGHT's plan.

Lord DERBY urged an exposition of the Ministerial policy and a disavowal of Mr. BRIGHT's opinions. The reticence of the Government was dangerous to the best interests of Ireland.

After a sharp passage between Lords DERBY and KIMBERLY, the discussion was dropped.

At the close of the session this evening the House of Lords adjourned until the 27th of May.

In the House of Commons to-night Mr. OTWAY, Under Foreign Secretary, said Spain had declined to accord a new hearing in the Tornade case. The detailed reasons assigned by Spain were now under consideration of the law officers of the Crown.

Mr. CARDWELL, Secretary of War, in reply to some intimations that had been thrown out, said the Government had no intention of countermanding the order for the reduction of the troops in Canada under the existing circumstances.

The Irish Church bill was reported from the Committee. Several amendments were proposed, and the bill was recommitted, with the understanding that the vote on its third reading shall be taken on the 21st of May.

Hon. REVERDY JOHNSON took formal leave of the Queen to-day, and at the interview presented Mr. MORAN as Charge d'Affaires until the arrival of Mr. MOTLEY.

The Times Again on the Alabama Claims.

LONDON, Thursday, May 13.

The Times to-day has an editorial article on the rejected Alabama Treaty, wherein it is asserted that the Government of Great Britain, in submitting to an arbitration on the question at all conceded everything that was originally demanded or expected by the American people, and everything that it was possible to concede.

The Nova Scotia Government Policy—England and Her Colonies.

HALIFAX, N. S., Thursday, May 13.

In the House of the Assembly, yesterday, Attorney-General WILKINS submitted a series of resolutions embodying the Government policy. The resolutions demand increased subsidies, increased representation for the Provinces in the House of Commons, and a modification of the existing arrangements affecting the taxation, trade, and fisheries of Nova Scotia. They also set forth that no settlement of the questions involved in the passage of the Act of Confederation should be considered final until after the subject had been submitted for the approval of the people.

MONTREAL, Thursday, May 13.

It is stated that information has been received here to the effect that the Privy Council in England is taking into consideration the advisability of relinquishing all her colonies except India.

Steamship Burning at New-Orleans—The Crevasse Below the City.

NEW-ORLEANS, Thursday, May 13.

The steamship Mexico, which has been lying at the wharf for several weeks, took fire at 2 o'clock this morning and burned till she sunk at 6 o'clock. No cargo or any combustibles were known to be on board; the fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary. The Fire Inspector reports the vessel recently sold—it is rumored to the Cubans. There is no insurance.

The crevasse reported several days ago at Valler's Plantation, below the city, has been abandoned as hopeless. The repairs by the negro soldiers and plantation hands wasted away as fast as constructed. The opening was about eighty feet wide, and eight feet in depth at last accounts, and is increasing. Another crevasse occurred only half a mile below the city limits last evening, but a company of negro soldiers, who were promptly sent from the barracks, closed the gap and strengthened the levee. The water is about two inches below high-water mark, but is driven by high northwest winds sometimes above the mark. The wharves at the head of Poydras and Fayotte streets are submerged. Considerable alarm is felt, and a strict watch is kept on the levees on the city front.

The steamers Virginia and Louisiana report that a serious crevasse occurred on Sunday west of Baton Rouge Parish, nearly opposite Fort Hudson. The Baton Rouge Advocate of Monday says this crevasse caused a sudden fall of two inches in the river at that point; also, that all attempts to close it were ineffectual, owing to the sandy soil and the extent of the break, which was then sixty yards wide.

Fire in Hudson, N. Y.

HUDSON, N. Y., Thursday, May 13.

About 12 o'clock last night a fire broke out in the carpenter shop of A. FOLSOM, in Partition-street, entirely destroying that building and the dwelling-house of ALVIN CALKINS. Damage was also sustained by A. L. Calkins, Samuel Crissman, John Crawford, J. R. Rowly, J. Godfrey, Charles McKoun, J. Blaco, E. Crossman, Peter B. Moore, C. Miller and Edward Carter. The loss will exceed $6,000; insured for about $3,000 in the Home, of New-York; Glens Falls, of New-York; North American, of Pennsylvania; Enterprise and Etna, of Hartford. The steam fire engine saved the city from a disastrous conflagration, as the fire occurred in a very combustible locality, and a high wind prevailed all the time.

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

The National Encampment in Session in Cincinnati—Interesting Proceedings—Election of Officers.

CINCINNATI, Thursday, May 13.

The National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic met in secret session at 9 o'clock this morning. Chaplain-General QUINT introduced a resolution proposing that the Grand Army of the Republic should form a life insurance and annuity corporation. The motion was adopted, and referred to the Special Committee.

The Committee on Finance made their report, which was accepted, and the Committee discharged.

Comrade RHODES, of Rhode Island, was admitted as an delegate to debate on the proposed ritual. The Convention excluded all but the delegates. The annuity corporation proposed is to be organized under the laws of the United States as a cooperative association for the benefit of the heirs of deceased comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic, and will be chartered by Congress as a national incorporation. The object of the corporation is to provide and secure a certain sum of money, not less than one thousand dollars, to the heirs of each deceased member.

The conditions of admission to membership are that the applicant must be a comrade of one of the Posts of the Grand Army of the Republic, of good standing; that he must accompany his application by 50 cents admission fee; that the application must be filed before the 1st day of January, 1871. After that date the number of members cannot be increased under any consideration. No restrictions whatever are made as to the age, conditions, habits, state of health, or anything else in regard to qualifications of the applicant.

A private session was held from 4 till 5 o'clock this afternoon. General JOHN A. LOGAN was elected Commander-in-Chief; Governor FAIRCHILD, of Wisconsin, was chosen Senior Vice-Commander; Dr. S. P. WYLIE MITCHELL was lected Surgeon-General for the United States; Rev. A. H. QUINT was chosen Chaplain-in-Chief.

The meeting adjourned at 5 o'clock. The next meeting will be held at Washington, D. C., on the second Wednesday in May. During the session resolutions disavowing that any political object pertains to the organizations were passed.

A banquet was held at the Spencer House this evening.

Proposed Consolidation of Railroads in Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Mass., Thursday, May 13.

A proposition was laid before the Legislative Committee on Railroads, to day, for consolidation into one road of the Boston and Lowell, Nashua and Lowell, Nashua and Concord, Northern Vermont Central and Ogdensburg Railroads, covering the entire line between this city and Ogdensburg, N. Y. It is proposed to call it the Great Northern Railroad. The bill authorizes the purchase of all the above-named roads, and limits the capital stock of the new corporation to the capital stock and amount of indebtedness of the several roads, with the railroad and steamboat lines now leased by them, which the corporation is also empowered to buy, the whole to be upon terms mutually to be agreed upon, and to be ratified by a majority of the stockholders of each road at a meeting called for the purpose. It is understood that all the roads above mentioned are in favor of the consolidation. A hearing upon the matter will be given at a future day.

The Smuggling Case at Philadelphia—Partial Investigation.

PHILADELPHIA, Thursday, May 13.

An investigation into the articles seized on board the steamer Juniata, from New-Orleans via Havana, shows that 18,000 cigars had been smuggled by some under-officers of the steamer through the influence of some man in this city. He directed their immediate discharge, and he claims that the goods which were on the ship's manifest properly belonged to her stores, and as such were not subject to seizure. It is also said that the purser, through some difficulty with the Company's officers arising out of the cigar business, had tendered his resignation, and was leaving the ship with brandy, gin, wine, &c., which he claimed as his own property when they were taken possession of. The matter has been reported to Collector MOORE, who will institute a strict investigation.

The Indiana Legislature—Resignation of the Democratic Members.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Thursday, May 13.

All the Democratic members of the House of Representatives, except two, resigned this morning, leaving the House again without a quorum.

In the Senate, at the roll-call this afternoon, thirty-seven members answered to their names. The doors were locked and the absentees sent for. Pending this proceeding the Constitutional amendment was called up and the vote taken. Although the Democratic members present announced that they had sent their resignations to the Governor this morning, the Lieutenant-Governor ruled that the Senate had no official notice of their resignation, and declared the amendment ratified, by a vote of twenty-seven yeas to one nay, eleven Senators present not voting. It is thought the Republican members of the House will vote on the amendment to-morrow morning, and then adjourn.

Ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment by the Connecticut Legislature.

HARTFORD, Conn., Thursday, May 13.

The House of Representatives to-day ratified the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution by a vote of 126 Republicans to 104 Democrats. Seven were absent or not voting. The twenty-two majority is the exact Republican majority on a full vote. Only one man classed as a Republican voted "no," and he was elected from a Democratic town on a local issue. The Senate ratified the amendment last week, the vote in that body, as finally recorded, being 19 Republicans to 6 Democrats. One was absent from each party.

Important Decision by Chief-Justice Chase.

RICHMOND, Va., Thursday, May 13.

In the United States Court to-day, in the proceedings against the United States Marshal of this District in 1861, for funds turned over to the Confederate Government, the defendant pleaded the United States statutes of limitations, and the plea was admitted by Chief-Justice CHASE, who was presiding, and the United States was non-suited. This is an important decision, the plea put forward being the same that will be pleaded by all persons sued in the Southern States, who, on the breaking out of the war, made the same disposition of Government funds.

The Shooting of Senator Adkins, of Georgia—The Commercial Convention.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Thursday, May 13.

The shooting of ADKINS is deplored by many leading papers and citizens, as it is feared it will be handled as a pretext to deal harshly with Georgia. There are no new developments as to the cause of the shooting.

Great interest is manifested in the Southern Commercial Convention, which meets in Memphis on the 18th. Delegates are going from the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama.

Proposed Alabama Immigration Company.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Thursday, May 13.

The morning papers contain a call signed by many of the most prominent business men and planters of this city and country, for a Convention on the 1st day of June to organize an immigration company. Colonel LEE CRANDALL has been canvassing the State in favor of the plan, and it is meeting with great success. The railroads and hotels have agreed to take half fare from all attending the Convention.

CUBA.

A Privateer in New-York Harbor—An Ex-Officer of the United States Navy in Charge—United States Veterans to Man Her.

We have received from a source which we consider reliable, the following somewhat indefinite note relative to the presence in this harbor of a Cuban privateer, with arms and ammunition on board, and commend it to the attention of the authorities, whose suspicions are not aroused:

"A fast steamer, which can make twenty-three miles an hour, is being fitted out, under the charge and direction of an ex-officer of the United States Navy, in aid of the Cuban rebels. She has been lying in the Sound, but on May 12 was steamed up to New-York. She has on board two batteries fully equipped, arms, ammunition, medicine and a quantity of mattresses. She will take on board 100 United States veterans, and will sail about Monday next. She will clear for the British West Indies. The authorities have not the least suspicion concerning her."

Reported Battle at Las Minas—Rebel Account—Heavy Spanish Loss.

HAVANA, Wednesday, May 12, } Via KEY WEST, Fla., Thursday, May 13.

Private letters have been received from rebel sources, giving accounts of another battle between the Spanish troops and the insurgents. It took place on the 8d inst., at Las Minas. The Spaniards numbered 1,200, and were under the command of General LESCA. The revolutionary force was commanded by General QUESADA in person. One report says before the fighting commenced, QUESADA posted the native Cubans in front, protected by intrenchments, and placed a force of 400 Dominican and American volunteers in their rear, with orders to fire upon them if they ran. Thus placed between two fires, the Cubans fought with desperation. The Spaniards attacked the intrenchments three times, with the bayonet. The two first assaults were repulsed by the Cubans; the third was very determined and severe, and the Cubans began to waver, when QUESADA ordered the rear guard to the front. They advanced, driving the Cubans into the front ranks of the enemy. A hand-to-hand combat ensued, in which the butchery was horrible. The Spaniards finally gave way and retreated, but in good order. Their loss is estimated at 140 killed and 300 wounded; that of the Cubans 200 killed and a proportionate number wounded. The forces of QUESADA, after the fight, marched to San Miguel and burned the town in sight of the retreating Spaniards.

It is generally believed that the revolutionary leaders have changed their policy in the field, and in future will fight instead of retreating to the mountains on the appearance of any considerable force of Government troops.

In the battle at Altagracia, which took place on the 1st inst., the Cuban loss was 200, and the Spanish 180 killed and wounded.

The Spaniards here regard the result of these actions as fatal to the cause of the rebellion; but the Cubans are jubilant over them as the first great successes of the war for independence.

Rumored Engagement Between Valmaseda and Cespedes—More Plantations Burning.

HAVANA, Thursday, May 13—Evening.

It is rumored that Count VALMASEDA has had an engagement with the rebels under General CESPEDES. Nothing definite is known of the affair.

More plantations have been burned by the rebels around Santiago de Cuba. It is estimated that the plantations which have been destroyed in that jurisdiction produced annually 18,000 hogsheads of sugar.

The crew of the schooner Galenade have been released and taken to Jamaica by the British gunboat Heron.

The insurgents have reappeared in the vicinity of Santa Cruz.

The United States flag-ship Contoocook returned to this port to-day.

Sugar market active. Exchange in demand, but rates unaltered.

The Fisk Libel Suits.

From the Bridgeport Standard.

Speaking of libel suits, Mr. FISK, Jr., has gone into the business quite extensively of late. Two weeks since he commenced a suit against the TIMES for $1,000,000, and two against the money editor of that paper for $100,000 each. This is pretty good in itself—provided he gets it—but not enough to satisfy JAMES FISK, Jr. So a day or two since he began another suit against the TIMES for libel, but the amount of damages claimed I have not heard—probably a few millions, for he couldn't be content with less than seven figures in the bill. These suits are not all in Mr. FISK's name, but they all bear the marks of his manipulations. Perhaps the animus of these suits may be found in the fact that some time since a person much interested in Erie Railroad matters tried, by the offer of several thousand dollars in cash, to induce the money editor of the TIMES to cease his attacks upon the schemes connected with that road which were then just being inaugurated. The editor spurned the offer, and the TIMES has pursued the Erie manipulators with unwonted energy. The paper does not seem to be very much put out by these prosecutions, but, on the contrary, continues its attacks with increased vigor.

The Fisk, Jr., Libel Suits.

From the Boston Advertiser.

The efforts of Messrs. FISK and GOULD to crush the financial writer of the NEW-YORK TIMES by multiplied suits, enormous damages and vexatious arrests, will probably do the plaintiffs no good. Indeed, by such measures they are fast making it morally impossible to repeat the alleged offence of injuring their character. The law of libel has its uses, but the stifling of criticism upon such operations as those which have driven Erie from the stock boards of Old World and New is not one of them.

POLITICAL MOVEMENTS.

The New Enrollment of the Republicans of the Sixteenth District.

The polls were opened last evening at No. 126 Third-avenue, for the reenrollment of the Republicans of the Sixteenth Assembly District. This is one of the three districts whose delegates were sent back from the General Committee for reflection. The crowd was so great that the polls were kept open to a very late hour, and to complete the enrollment it will be necessary to hold open the polls until this evening. A force of Police, under Captain CAMERON, was present, for the purpose of

AN OLD LAND-MARK DISAPPEARING.

Interesting History of the New-York City Hospital—The City One Hundred Years Ago.

The resistless march of improvement causes the disappearance, one after another, of the time-honored land-marks that old New-Yorkers are so fond of regarding with commingled feelings of respect and pleasure. The generation that has now come on the stage of action, however, is not impressed with the reverential feeling that was so marked a character of its predecessor. Commerce has supplanted curiosity; and Mammon is no respecter of the antiquities. Whatevermay be utilised for present or prospective gain, though it be associated with memories the most precious or patriotic, has to give way before the onward and constantly extending strides of business traffic. The old resident, if he seeks for the spots familiar to his boyhood, will find that they have totally changed their appearance, and that they are as strange to him as he is to them. Perchance, when viewing the changed condition of the City in those localities where he frisked and gamboled in his youth, he may heave a sigh of regret, to find that the structures with which are associated his most pleasurable recollections are gone forever, and the thought will irresistibly and appositely arise that he, too, is passing away. The old Stuyvesant pear tree, that for two and a quarter centuries was the only remembrancer of rural New-Amsterdam, has, years since, been removed; and one might as well search for tropical plants in Siberia as expect to find any token of the New-York of one hundred, or even fifty years ago, between Union-square and the Battery.

Another of the old landmarks is doomed to destruction. In fact, the work of its demolition has begun, and the place that knew it once will soon "know it no more forever." The Broadway Hospital, at the head of Pearl-street, is to be removed, and a new street, (the continuation of Pearl,) is to be cut through the grounds and building, between Worth and Duane streets. This will connect with Thomas-street, and thus establish a connection between Pearl-street and West Broadway. The improvement is needed for the constantly increasing traffic in this section of the City; but old New-Yorkers will, nevertheless, look upon the demolition of this time-honored edifice with regret. A short history of the hospital may not prove uninteresting to our readers, especially those whose recollections extend back half a century.

The founding of this institution was undertaken by private subscriptions of the inhabitants of New-York, in the year 1770, in consequence of a petition to the then Governor, by PETER MIDDLETON, JOHN JONES and SAMUEL BARD, three prominent physicians of this City. It was incorporated by charter and letters patent from KING GEORGE III., on the 13th of June, 1771, under the title of "The Society of the Hospital in the City of New-York, in America." The Society was truly Catholic in its character, disclaiming any influence of contracted attachments to any national, civil or religious distinctions; but declaring all persons entitled to the benefits of the institution, whose maladies and extreme indigence cast them on the charity of others for relief. By the influence of Dr. JOHN FOTHERGILL, then a medical practitioner in London, and Sir WILLIAM DUNCAN, it was aided by the contributions of many inhabitants of London, and other parts of Great Britain. The Colonial Legislature also gave it an allowance of £800 per annum for twenty years. A plan of building was agreed upon in 1773, but unfortunately, when the house was nearly completed, it accidentally took fire on the 26th of February, 1775, and was almost destroyed. The loss to the Society by this calamity was $7,000, and the benevolent design of the founders would have failed of success had not the Legislature generously come forward and voted £4,000 to assist in rebuilding the house. The war with Great Britain, which took place during the same year, however, prevented the completion of the work. When the City was captured by the British in 1776, the hospital, then unfinished, was turned into a barracks, and was much injured, by the soldiery. Owing to a variety of obstacles, and the derangement in the circumstances of our citizens during the war, it was not until 1791 that the house was in proper order to receive patients, in January of which year a number were admitted. Meantime the legislative annuity had ceased; but the Legislature in 1792 granted $2,000 per year for five years, in consideration for arrears due, for its better support. This sum was increased in 1796 to $3,000 per annum for four years; and, by a special act, the Harbor Master of the port was directed to pay into the hospital fund certain fines, therein mentioned, collected from him from owners and captains of vessels. The first building erected after the fire of 1775 was the main one which fronts on Broadway, immediately opposite the end of Pearl-street. This, as above stated, was completed in 1791. In 1806 the number of patients had increased so largely that the south building was erected. This addition was intended as an asylum for lunatic patients, but the establishment of the Bloomingdale Insane Asylum, in 1821, having rendered it useless for that purpose, the Governors, in 1826, thoroughly repaired and refitted it as a hospital for seamen, devoted to that object under the name of the "Marine Department of the New-York Hospital." In 1846, owing to the growth of the City, and the increase of the demand for accidents, the erection of another office was determined on. This was completed in 1847 at an expense of $60,000. It occupies the north side of the grounds, and corresponds in general appearance with the marine building. The actual originator of this hospital enterprise was Dr. SAMUEL BARD, one of the petitioners above mentioned, and a member of the first Board of Governors. Dr. BARD was a gentleman of most benevolent impulses, and had long seen the necessity for an institution of this character in the City. In the annual address delivered by him at the King's (now Columbia) College, November 1, 1769, he referred to the want of a hospital, and recommended measures for the establishment of one. The suggestion was taken up by the philanthropic citizens of that day, and the result was as above stated. By provision of the original charter, the officers of the Hospital Society were John Watts, President; Andrew Elliott, Vice-President; Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Treasurer; John Moore, Secretary. The first Board of Governors was composed of Oliver De Lancey, Charles Ward Apthorp, Roger Morris, William Smith, Hugh Wallace, Henry White, Robert R. Livingston, Archibald Kennedy, David Clarkson, Abraham Mortier, (Paymaster of the British forces then stationed in New-York,) Abraham Lott, Walter Franklin, Leonard Lispenard, Gerardus W. Beekman, Philip Livingston, Wm. McAdam, George Brown, Wm. Axtell, Dr. John Fothergill, (of London), Nathaniel Marston, Lawrence Kortright and George Folliott. These were among the first-class merchants and professional men of the City in that era. As will be seen from their names, descendants of some of them are yet among us, while many of the other families have died out. Nearly all the prominent citizens from 1770 to 1830 were in some way or other identified with the success of this institution. In the list of Governors we find the names of ABRAM ALEXANDER BURR, (who was in the Board from 1784 to 1792,) DE WITT CLINTON, GOUVERNEUR MORRIS, JAMES KENT, JOHN JAY, WILLIAM JAUNCEY and others whose names are intimately connected with our City's history. Probably the oldest (if not the only) living representative of the Boards of Governors in those by-gone days, is Hon. GULIAN C. VERPLANCK, who was a member of the Board in 1825, forty-six years ago.

In 1796 the first published report was made of the operations of the hospital. The New-York Historical Society has a copy of this report, the gift to the Society of Mrs. WILLIS CLIFT, of this City, in whose family it had been preserved. From it we learn that the expenses of the hospital for the year 1797 were £4,357 10s. 7¼d. There were then in the hospital 112 patients; admitted during the year, 473; cured, 296; relieved, 59; discharged at their own request, 13; disorderly and eloped, 41; died, 37. The principal nativities of the patients were: American, 240; Irish, 165; English, 57; Scotch, 25; German, 20; the others being from various portions of Europe and the West Indies. The following-named gentlemen were then Governors and officers of the Institution: Gerard Walton, President; Matthew Clarkson, Vice-President; John Murray, Treasurer; Thomas Eddy, Secretary; Peter Schermerhorn, Jno. Murray, Jr., William Edgar, Wm. Minturn, Thomas Buchanan, Robt. Bowne, Jno. C. Kunze, Edmund Fanning, Peter Rogers, Jno. B. Coles, Henry Haydock, Jr., Henry Rutgers, Thurston, Jno. I. Glover, Thos. Franklin, Wm. T. Robinson, Jas. Kent, Hugh Gaine, William Jauncey, Jacob de la Montagne, Jas. Watson, John Barrow. Physicians—Samuel L. Mitchell, (the Nestor of American science,) David Mosack, Jno. R. B. Rodgers, Elias H. Smith. Surgeons—Richard Bayley, Wright Post, Samuel Borrowe, Valentine Seaman, Robt. S. Kissam. House Surgeon—Samuel Barnum. Apothecary—Adolphus Lent.

The reminiscences of New-York at the time this report was made are interesting. JOHN JACOB ASTOR then kept a store at No. 81 Pearl (then Queen) street, "next door but one to the Friends' Meeting-house." An advertisement in one of the papers of that time tells us that he had for sale "an assortment of piano-fortes of the finest construction." And, in the same advertisement we find the following, which indicates the means whereby he attained to such great wealth: "N. B.—He gives cash for all kinds of furs, and has for sale raccoon skins, raccoon blankets and muskrat skins." The "Friends' Meeting-house" above alluded to, was located in Pearl-street, between Franklin-square and Oak-street. It was taken down in 1824. Colonel MARINUS WILLETT, a gallant Revolutionary hero, who was Sheriff from 1784 to 1789, and Mayor in 1807, then sold "choice teas and St. Croix rum" at No. 30 Water-street. PHILLIP LIVINGSTON, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, did business at "the New Dock, near the ferry stairs," and sold "Irish linens, coffee, rice, sugar, and choice Tenerife wine, just imported." PHILLIP ANGUALIRIUS, whose daughter is the widow of the late Ex-Mayor HARPER, had just built a new and, for that time, most fashionable mansion, at what is now No. 11 Frankfort-street, where the élite of the City were frequently assembled. The present City Hall was not then built. Most of the citizens resided below Cortlandt-street and Maiden-lane; Statesmen, including the District of Columbia, had been taking it. The president had received constant attentions, no distinction having been made between them and white persons. Colored colleges had sprung up, and the monopoly of the whole country with the Bible had been carried forward with vigor; Lots, his families had been visited, and 18,000 of them supplied with the Holy Scriptures. Important plans were now in hand for the enlargement of the work of the Society, both at home and abroad.

The resolutions referred to the effect that the bright prospects of the Bible cause in Italy, Austria, Portugal and Spain, should stimulate increased effort on the part of its friends; that in the present aspects of the religious world, in which much is revolutionary and tending to a subversion of the "faith once delivered to the saints," while there is still a development of religious toleration where bigotry and superstition have hitherto prevailed, the claims of the Bible, as the Book of God, appeal now with fresh force to the Christian mind, as affording the only ground of peace to the conflicting schools of thought, and the only rule of faith and practice to those who are wandering in the maze of speculation; that the influence of Christianity on civilization is explicable only by the fact that the Bible is a divine revelation, and that the work of translating the Scriptures into the Northern Chinese or Mandarin dialect was regarded with great interest by the Society as a means of giving them to half the people of the Chinese Empire.

Mr. GEORGE H. STUART, of Philadelphia, on being announced, said that the greatest honor of his life had been conferred upon him when he was deputed by the Society to present a Bible to President GRANT. The President sent for his wife and children, that they might be present, and said that the book should be handed down as an heirloom in his family.

Bishop OGILBY said that he had been introduced to the Bible Society at ten years of age by his father, as the most Christian institution he could make the acquaintance of. He gave several details of Bible distribution at the Paris Exposition.

Rev. Dr. G. F. ERCKREE said that although the Society had existed fifty-three years, it showed no signs of decay, and though but few attended the anniversary, they were no criterion of the immense work of the Society. He talked of the progress of Protestantism in Italy, Spain and Austria, and gave a sketch of the progress of the Reformation from Luther's day.

Rev. NOAH E. SCHENCK, D. D., followed, saying that amid all the convulsions of the political and spiritual worlds, there was no definite guide except the Bible. Men now discussed sacred subjects with as much coolness as if they were talking upon the life of NAPOLEON. The Bible should be the only authority. It was denied that the Church would be entirely at sea. Men should never allow themselves for a moment to question its infallibility. His only standard of belief was the Bible. If men approached him with religious doubts, he asked them if they believed the Bible. If not, he could hold no argument with them.

The audience then sang a hymn, and Rev. Dr. TIFFANY, of Baltimore, followed in a discourse, accounting for the civilization existing in certain countries by the fact that the Bible was read among them. He had been told that the late victories of the Prussians over the Austrians was owing to the fact that every Prussian soldier had his Bible in his knapsack.

Rev. Dr. DEEMS, of North Carolina, complimented the behavior of the freedmen in the South since their freedom was gained. He accounted for it in the fact that the colored people had plentifully received Bible instruction.

Rev. Dr. BURNS spoke at length upon China and the Chinese. He complimented their intellectual activity and progression in the arts, but stated that, being without the Bible, their advance had been limited. They depressed women, and were yet barbarians in many respects.

Rev. Mr. ROSS, a missionary in Burmah, gave interesting reminiscences of his experience in Burmah, of the liberality of the Sovereign, and of the progress of missions there.

Bishop MCILVAINE then made a few remarks and announced a benediction. After this the meeting dispersed.

At 9 o'clock, before the session took place, a business meeting was held in the Bible House. Nine managers, comprising the fourth class, were elected. They were Richard T. Haines, James Boorman, Charles S. Talbot, A. P. Cummings, Wm. H. Aspinwall, Wm. G. Lambert, Isaac Odell, Stephen Crowell, John H. Earle.

The Death of a Boston Druggist—The Public Administrator Busy Again.

Mention was made in these columns of the sudden death in the streets on Wednesday evening of Mr. GEORGE C. GOODWIN, a drug merchant in Boston. The remains were taken charge of by the Fifteenth Ward Police, and Coroner FLYNN held an inquest yesterday at the Mercer-street Police Station. Deputy Coroner SHINE made the necessary post-mortem examination, and ascertained that the pericardium having become filled with blood had caused an aneurismal rupture of the heart, which resulted in immediate death. The jury acted on this theory, and rendered a verdict in accordance. The deceased gentleman was 64 years of age, a native of Massachusetts, and had been for many years a prominent dealer in drugs in Boston, having extensive business relations throughout the Union.

Before the Coroner had taken any action in the case, some person called at the Astor House, and representing himself to be an attaché of the Public Administrator's office, demanded possession of the effects of the deceased, who had been stopping at the hotel. Mr. STETSON at once surrendered such property as had been left in his possession, and the official departed with the same. This action would doubtless be commendable on the part of the Public Administrator, as it is customary to wait until the Coroner has disposed of the case, when he surrenders the property to the proper official. It may be that some unauthorized person has obtained the property of Mr. GOODWIN, and intends appropriating the same to his own benefit.

A meeting of the friends of the late GEO. C. GOODWIN, of Boston, was held at the office of P. H. DRAKE & Co. yesterday. The drug trade of New-York and other cities was largely represented. Mr. JEREMIAH CURRYS was chosen Chairman, and WILLIAM A. WARD, Secretary. The following gentlemen were appointed a committee to draft appropriate resolutions: Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass., Chairman; John F. Henry, John McKesson, A. G. Coffin, P. H. Drake, Henry W. Henry, Burlington, Vt; L. L. Dutcher, St. Albans, Vt.; L. R. Herrick, Albany, N. Y.; Donald Kennedy, Roxbury, Mass.; W. C. Potter, Boston, Mass.; A. G. Torrey, J. H. Bates, Geo. N. Curtis, Henry Hall, H. S. Barrett. They reported the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, We have learned, with feelings of deep regret, of the sudden death at Mr. GEO. C. GOODWIN, who for years has been engaged in business in the Eastern States, and who has always borne an unblemished reputation as an upright, honorable man, and consistent Christian—who has been called from the midst of a active life without a moment's warning;

Resolved, That in his consistent Christian life and honorable character we recognize an example worthy of careful imitation; and in his untimely death, we feel a loss that will be universally felt throughout the wide circle of his acquaintance.

Resolved, That we would most respectfully tender our sympathies and condolence to the family, who have thus been unexpectedly deprived of a faithful and loving guardian and kind protector, whose hand was ever open to the call of charity; and we trust that God, who is all-wise and all-merciful, may soften the grief of this sad and sudden bereavement.

Appropriate remarks were then made by Messrs. CURTIS, BOYDEN, AYER, COWIN, HEGEMAN and KENNEDY. A letter was also read from Hon. DENNIS KEMP, of Detroit. It was resolved that these resolutions be inserted in New-York and Boston papers, and a copy be sent to the family of the deceased.

The New Fire Commissioners in Brooklyn.

Since the law providing for the organization of a new Fire Commission for the City of Brooklyn has been passed by the Legislature the people are in suspense, and are indulging in much speculation, owing to the fact that the appointing power provided for in the law do not appear to act with the same promptness that characterized their action in relation to the Water and Sewerage Commission appointments. The appointing power consists of Mayor KALBFLEISCH, Comptroller JOHNSON, Street Commissioner FUREY, City Treasurer SPRAGUE and Mr. JACOB I. BERGEN, President of the Board of Aldermen. When the law was framed there was a slate the names on which were to be preserved intact, but it appears that this article has been broken by a combination of circumstances. The Democratic Commissioners were to have been HUGH MCLAUGHLIN and FUREY, and the Republican Commissioners were to have been Ex-Alderman CLARKE of the First Ward, and JACOB WORTH, of Williamsburg—the understanding being that Mr. CARROW would merely accept the appointment for the purpose of holding it until Mr. AUBREY B. HODGES would be released from the duties and responsibilities of his position as a member of the Legislature, when he (Mr. CARROW) would retire and make room for Mr. HODGES. Since the passage of the law, however, Mr. SAMUEL T. MADDOX, a political force in the Republican ranks, has been ousted from the Assessorship of the Third Internal Revenue District, and Mr. ANTHONY CAMPBELL has lost the Post Office; so now there are two more candidates for the Fire Commissionership on the Republican side in the field. Meantime Mayor KALBFLEISCH nominates as one of the Democratic Commissioners his son-in-law, RODNEY PRESSON, of the Citizens' Insurance Company of Williamsburg, and, if he can carry this point, is in readiness to vote for any of the Republicans. This causes a division of opinion on the part of the other members of the Appointing Committee, excepting Mr. BERGEN, who is understood to stand by the Mayor for better or for worse. City Treasurer SPRAGUE is of opinion that the Commission ought to be entirely Democratic. Messrs. FUREY and JOHNSON contend certainly for the slate. What will become of the Republican slate, the kind, is reserved for the fates to tell. Mayor KALBFLEISCH takes the ground that no official notification of the passage of the law having been served on him, the Appointing Board can do nothing in the premises, and this notwithstanding the fact that it is unusual for such notifications to be served or waited for; as also the other fact that a similar Board, Mayor KALBFLEISCH being a member, proceeded to appoint the Water and Sewerage Commission on the mere announcement from Albany, by telegraph, that the Governor had signed the bill and it had become a law.

SOUTHWARD HO!

Where to Emigrate Southward—Virginia the New-Jersey of the South—Farms Selling for $3 and $6 per Acre—Less than the Cost of the Improvements—Northern Men and Foreigners Protected There.

The Fruit Growers' Club convened at 1:30 o'clock yesterday, at No. 37 Park-place, in "Horticultural Hall," with a respectably large attendance. Dr. E. T. HALLOCK took the chair, and called the meeting to order.

Mr. E. WOOD, of Long Island, explained his new mode of exterminating noxious insects, destructive to fruit trees and vegetables. He employs an alkaline phosphate, which is spread around the trees and dug into the turf.

A. S. FULLER stated that he had no confidence in the phosphate for repelling the curculio. He doubted whether half a ton of such material spread round a tree would exert any perceptible influence in exterminating this most destructive pest of our fruit trees.

General CABELL, of Florida, opened the debate on the question this: "Where shall we emigrate to?" He first touched upon the agricultural resources of Virginia, stating that in numerous instances excellent farms can be obtained at a price less than the improvements on them would cost, including buildings, fences, &c. Good farms, in many instances, he said, can be purchased for $3 to $6 per acre. The best of laborers can be secured at reasonable prices. Yet they—the colored men—cannot be expected to labor as the farmers of the North are accustomed to work. He then made a brief allusion to Florida and other localities.

General UNDERW then took the floor, hung a map of Virginia against the wall, and talked for a few moments about the climate and many other considerations which affect the desirableness of any locality. He dwelt at some length upon the commercial advantages of Virginia. Wheat, he said, is now transported from Virginia to New-York City for six cents per bushel. He showed by the map something of the almost unlimited extent of fisheries in the eastern region. He also dwelt upon the wonderful productiveness of the soil in the raising of all kinds of vegetables and fruit. The ordinary product of peas there, he said, is from 100 to 125 bushels per acre. He mentioned a long list of vegetables that will mature previous to the 1st of July. Nearly two-thirds of the immense melons that are sold in New-York City are brought from Virginia. Raspberries and strawberries and all other small fruits are produced in vast abundance. As fine figs can be raised there as are brought from Smyrna. The yield of figs is enormous. He asked Indian corn as the first important crop of Virginia. Oats were second, and wheat the third. No better country can be found for the production of flax. Indeed the flax product is not inferior to the reputed flax localities in Ireland. He spoke at length of the valuable peat beds and marl beds, and the immense forests of valuable oak timber. The marl, he said, often contains from forty to eighty per cent. of lime. But those parts of Virginia are not a good grass country. There seems to be too much sandy loam there for the production of heavy crops of good grass. In many instances the soil is of such a character, that any kind of grain and grass may be raised. On the farms south of the James River, fine wheat is produced in large crops, from twenty to thirty bushels per acre. And the wheat of that part of the State will sell for twenty cents per bushel more than the wheat grown in many other parts of the State. All the cultivated grasses grow luxuriantly there. Red clover is being extensively produced in that part of the State. He urged people to go and see the country for themselves, feeling assured that they will find everything as he has represented the advantages of the improved portions of the State of Virginia. The best way to go from here is to buy a ticket to Baltimore only. He will furnish tickets to any part of the country from Baltimore at half rates. Or one can take a steamer to Norfolk for about $12, including board.

Colonel WILLIAMSON then stated that Mr. PALMER, who usually meets with the Club, started yesterday for Virginia with seventy-one families, who go to settle in that State. He also stated that Mr. MCILROY had donated $8,225 worth of seeds to be distributed gratuitously through the South. Application may be made of the Secretary of the Fruit Growers' Club, No. 37 Park-place, in this City, for any further information.

The following letters were read at the Club, for the purpose of showing something of the kindly feeling there is toward Virginia. They need no comment:

The first letter is from Rev. Dr. A. C. VAN RAALTE of Holland, Michigan. A Hollander by birth, and at the head of the colony of his countrymen, now numbering from two hundred to three hundred people, recently settled in Virginia:

AMELIA COURT-HOUSE, Va., May 12, 1869.

General Ingham:

DEAR SIR: Having an interest in the welfare of our country, I feel bound to witness that the Southern citizens are in deep earnest to receive cordially the Northern as well as the foreign emigration; they acknowledge it to be the building up of their country. The North will find an open welcome among amicable neighbors, and a field for enterprise and a new sphere of education and men of business. However, nobody must expect that everybody in the South is in that elevated position; and it would be absurd to expect that the war-torn country would be all in Northern sentiment, and that the wounds of the past would be all healed up, time and intermingling must do this. A mind and heart to develop the resources of the country is highly appreciated.

With esteem, yours very respectfully,

A. C. VAN RAALTE.

Copy of a joint letter from the Northern men recently settled in Virginia:

AMELIA, C. H., Va., May 11, 1869.

General J. D. Ingham:

DEAR SIR: We understand that it has been recently stated in New-York City that Northern men were unkindly treated in Virginia. We having purchased land and settled in Amelia County, Va., it is a pleasure in stating that such reports are absolutely untrue in our opinion, and that all well-behaved Northerners will be treated well. If we know anywhere in Virginia, will be kindly received, and all their rights protected by the native white citizens. We authorize you to use this letter as you choose.

Yours respectfully, &c.,

(Signed) JAMES E. SMALL, late of Washington County, N. Y., S. H. HACKETT, late of Easton, Penn., JACOB H. HANN, late of New-Jersey.

Coroners' Cases.

The remains of an unknown man were found yesterday morning in the North River, near Pier No. 1. The body was very much decomposed by being in the water for some time, so that it could not be exposed at the Morgue. Coroner FLYNN will hold the necessary inquest.

Coroner KEENAN was notified yesterday to hold an inquest over the body of JOHN HOWSER, a native of Germany, aged 40, and an employe in the brewery of Messrs. J. & G. GOTTFRIEDER, at No. 82 New-Bowery. The deceased was found lying dead among some barrels in the brewery yard, and as he was in his night clothes, it is supposed that Howser fell during the night from a third-story window of his residence, No. 11 James-street, which overlooks the yard. The immediate cause of death was a fracture of the skull.

Coroner FLYNN held an inquest yesterday, at the Morgue, over the remains of JOHN HORN, aged 25, and a native of this City, who died at Bellevue Hospital in consequence of injuries sustained on Tuesday afternoon, by his being accidentally run over by a cart in Third-avenue, near Forty-fourth-street. Deceased resided at No. 21 Forsyth-street, and leaves a wife and several children. A verdict in accordance with the facts was rendered.

Coroner FLYNN held an inquest yesterday morning, at the Morgue, over the remains of CHARLES MILLER, a German, aged 19 years, who died in Bellevue Hospital, on Wednesday night, from the effects of a fractured skull, caused by the deceased being struck by a falling brick at the Cooper Institute a few weeks ago, while he was at work on some repairs. The jury rendered a verdict of accidental death.

An inquest was held yesterday, by Coroner FLYNN, at No. 298 East Forty-sixth-street, over the body of HENRY P. NIPPS, aged 4 years, whose death was due to injuries received a few days ago, by being run over by an ice cart, in Forty-sixth-street, near the residence of his parents. A verdict of accidental death was duly rendered.

The body of a newly-born infant was discovered yesterday lying in the gutter on the corner of Fifty-second-street and Broadway, and was taken to the Forty-seventh-street Police Station for inquest by Coroner FLYNN.

A woman named WEIBEL was found dead yesterday in the basement of No. 193 Ninth-avenue. Coroner ROLLINS will investigate the case.

Commissioners of Charities and Correction.

The Commissioners of Charities and Correction held their fortnightly meeting yesterday. Sundry requisitions from departments were acted on, and communications were received on numerous subjects, among which was the appointment of E. T. PLUNKETT as physician and assistant teacher at Hart's Island. Captain WILLIAM H. KNAPP was appointed to supervise the heating apparatus in the several institutions for six months at a compensation of $750. Regulations were reported regarding provisions for extinguishing fire by means of the steamer Minnehaha.

It was resolved that the President of the Board should draw his requisition on the Comptroller of the City of New-York, and cause his warrant payable to the order of the President, Mr. ISAAC BELL, Mr. OWEN W. BRENNAN and JAS. B. NICHOLSON, Commissioners, for the sum of $200,000, said amount to be paid out of the appropriation for the Department of Public Charities and Correction for 1869. The Secretary reported the receipt of $6,371 20 from 30th April to 13th May, inclusive.

A Circulating Library.

Those of our readers who have heard of the immense circulating libraries of MUDIE and others, in London, may not be aware that a similar convenience has lately been opened in New-York, under auspices that promise to make it eminently serviceable and attractive to the reading public. This is the Brotherhood Circulating Library, at No. 129 East Seventeenth-street, where for $6 per annum nearly 20,000 volumes are at the command of subscribers, and where any two books (even though they should include as many as half a dozen volumes) may be taken out at a time.

This collection comprises the latest and choicest works in all the departments of literature, including between two and three thousand of the most attractive works of French and German literature, and, in addition, a remarkably full list of English and American periodicals of every description. We are sure that we are rendering a service to our readers in calling their attention to this admirable library, which affords especial facilities to those who are leaving town, and who wish to be regularly supplied during the coming season with Summer reading.

COMMON COUNCIL.

Board of Aldermen.

This Board met at 2 P. M. yesterday, Mr. COMAN in the chair.

Resolutions were offered and laid over to donate $427 to the Institution of the Sisters of Mercy, and $622 23 to St. Mark's Church, to pay assessments.

A resolution appropriating $30,000 to celebrate the 4th of July, and appointing a joint Committee to make the necessary arrangements therefor, was laid over.

Resolutions were adopted directing the Street Commissioner to have the gas-lamps from Canal-street to the lower end of the Park removed and placed inside the railing; also, to confer with the Telegraph Companies in regard to the removal of the telegraph poles from the street to the inside of the Park railing.

The following resolutions were also adopted: To remunber Forty-sixth-street from Fifth-avenue to the North River. To lay Belgian pavement in Forty-sixth-street from Sixth-avenue to Broadway. Directing the Clerk of the City Council to compile the Annual Manual of the Corporation for last, and further, directing that 15,000 copies be published and distributed, as follows: 5,000 to the Board of Aldermen, 5,000 to the Mayor, and 4,000 to the Clerk of the Common Council. The sum of $6,000 was appropriated for the compilation of the Manual.

The Board then adjourned to Monday next.

Board of Assistant Aldermen.

This Board met at 2 P. M. yesterday, Mr. MONAGHAN in the chair.

A resolution directing the Street Commissioner to advertise for proposals for building a bulkhead at the foot of Forty-fourth-street was presented.

Mr. PINCKNEY said that commerce is rapidly extending in that direction, and that it would be well to prepare for it.

The resolution was adopted.

The Irish Tribune was designated as a Corporation paper.

Resolutions were adopted to lay Belgian pavement in Sixty-third-street, from Third to Lexington-avenue; in Twenty-second-street, from Seventh to Eighth-avenue; in Fifty-fourth-street, from Eighth to Ninth-avenue; in Forty-Sixth-street, from Broadway to Ninth-avenue, and in One Hundred and Twenty-eighth-street, from Second to Fourth-avenue.

A donation of $161 14 was made to All Saints' Church, and one of $255 to the John-street M. E. Church, both to pay assessments.

The Board then adjourned to Monday next, at 3 o'clock P. M.

The Pacific Railroad-Telegram from the Mayor of San Francisco.

Mayor HALL yesterday morning received the following dispatch from the Mayor of San Francisco:

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13.

To the Mayor of New-York:

On behalf of San Francisco I cordially respond to your congratulations, and reciprocate your sentiments of good will. San Francisco owes much to New-York. In some of New-York were foremost in the conquest, both civil and military, of California; and California, ever grateful, has, during her short existence as a State, sent no less than four of them to the Senate of the United States. It is, therefore, appropriate for the citizens of New-York and San Francisco—the mother and daughter—to rejoice to-day. They are one in intention, in feeling, in religion and blood; and may the great railway, which has just joined them together, remain an indissoluble bond of union and love forever and ever.

FRANK MCCARTHY,
Mayor of San Francisco.

Important to Liquor Dealers—The Reissue of Licenses.

Superintendent KENNEDY summoned all of the Police Captains yesterday morning by telegraph, and on their appearance in his office he issued instructions that each Captain forthwith notify all the liquor dealers in their respective Precincts that such of them who have not yet applied for a renewal of their licenses must make immediate application to the Board of Excise. The last day for receiving such applications is fixed for the 20th inst., and the Excise Board have determined to prosecute all liquor dealers who fail to obtain licenses on or before that day.

Sale of the Street-Cleaning Contract.

Judge J. R. WHITING has disposed of the street-cleaning contract, it having been purchased by Mr. JOHN L. BOWEN, who assumed control of the Street Contractor's Department on the 1st inst. The sale was perfected on the 20th of April last. It is stated that Judge WHITING has not received any pay from the City for his services since the 1st of January. During the four months' time indicated he has removed 300,140 loads of filth from the streets. He has a claim against the City for about $160,000, which he can only collect through an order from the Street-Cleaning Commission. The latter body will meet in a few days.

The National Temperance Society.

At the close of the meeting of the National Temperance Society, held in Cooper Institute on Wednesday evening, after hearing Dr. LEES, of England, it was, on motion of PETER CARTER, Esq.,

Resolved, That we most cordially and earnestly recommend this able and eloquent lecturer to the temperance men and women of America, as a champion of mighty power, as a most entertaining and instructive speaker, and that we can conceive of no better good to the temperance cause throughout our land than that he should be invited to address the public in all our large cities on this vital topic.

Drink for Man and Beast.

The Water and Sewerage Board of Brooklyn have erected the first of their grand drinking fountains at the corner of Myrtle-avenue and Fulton-avenue. On the side toward the street is a large basin, at which horses can quench their thirst, and on the side toward the sidewalk is a basin of smaller dimensions, where the sons of men may drink without money and without price. At the base of the fountain are two small basins, at which dogs of all sizes will be enabled to satisfy their longing for water. Altogether, the Nassau water fountain thus erected, the first in the city, promises to be very useful, and beneficial, and people in other parts of the city will doubtless soon ask for the multiplication of fountains of pure water.

The Police Commissioners.

It was stated in yesterday's TIMES that although Mr. HENRY SMITH, the newly appointed Police Commissioner, had been present at the regular meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners on Wednesday, no action was taken toward his recognition by the Board, as required by law upon the accession of a new member. The Commissioners were all at Police Headquarters yesterday, and agreed to hold a special meeting to-morrow for the purpose of electing a President and Treasurer, after which the Board will proceed to inaugurate some needed changes in the Department, and perfect such arrangements as may coincide with the views of the newly constituted Board.

Probably Fatal Railroad Accident—Action of the Coroners.

Coroner FLYNN was notified yesterday that JOHN REMAGGIONI, an Italian boy, is now lying at Bellevue Hospital in a critical condition, in consequence of injuries received a fortnight ago by being run over by a Fourth-avenue car, near Twenty-eighth-street. The information gives the Coroner was, that the boy had been pushed off the car platform and then run over by one of the wheels. On the other hand, the railroad people claim that the boy fell off the platform and was unavoidably run over. An post-mortem examination will be held.

Fire in Williamsburg—Destruction of Appleton's Stables.

At 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning the stable belonging to and occupied by D. APPLETON & Co., at the corner of Wythe-avenue and Hewes-street, Brooklyn, E. D., was discovered to be on fire by ROBERT PATTERSON, the stable-keeper, who, with his family, resided in a small two-story house adjoining. The horses which were in the stable at the time were burned, which, with harness and two trucks, also destroyed, were valued at $2,300. The loss on the building was $2,000, no insurance. The fire was undoubtedly the act of an incendiary.

Impartial Justice.

CHARLES HENRY has been brought before a United States Commissioner charged with passing a $10 counterfeit bill on CHARLES T. ULLMANN, who keeps a concert saloon at No. 2 Mott-street. ULLMANN gave his testimony, and was then subjected to a cross-examination, in which he admitted that he had been arrested for violations of the Excise law, and that Justice DOWLING sent him to the Penitentiary for one month. While his case was pending before Justice DOWLING, he stated that he gave that functionary $100, but does not state why or for what purpose.

Doctor and Vestry of St. Ceneris Church. On the 6th of April, 1868, the plaintiff claimed, the defendants commenced an action against him for a portion of the stone fence of the building down the front wall. On the part of the defendants it was set up that in May, 1864, the plaintiff signed an agreement with the Doctor and Vestry of St. George's Church, in which she recognized the fee, and agreed that she had built the premises at the pleasure of the corporation, and would quit the same whenever required by them so to do. In March, 1868, the defendants purchased the premises, of which plaintiff had notice, and during that month entered into an agreement with defendants for the second floor and some back buildings, but excepting the store, and that from the 1st of April she assumed and became the tenant of defendants for the premises. The defendants further claimed and testified that the arrangement with the plaintiff for the second floor was distinct and definite, and produced a receipt for the rent month's rent, dated April 4, in which the premises are described as the upper part of the building; that at the time of such arrangement the plaintiff understanding the defendants did not intend making alterations in the lower story, asked permission to occupy it until actual work was commenced, at the same time giving assurance that she would vacate that portion at an hour's notice. When the work was commenced she made no objection, but voluntarily moved her goods back out of the way of the workmen. She subsequently brought this suit alleging that the rental was for the whole premises, and that from a part thereof she had been dispossessed, to her injury $5,000. The jury found a verdict in her favor for six cents.

Thomas Cushing and Mr. Bryan for plaintiff; Tracy & Olmstead for defendants.

SUPERIOR COURT—TRIAL TERM.—PART I.

MAY 13.

Before Judge Jones and a Jury.

LIQUIDATED DAMAGES—UNFRUITFUL VINES.

Jessie G. Van Tassel vs. F. William W. Walker.—This was an action to recover the sum of $8,000 liquidated damages for breach of contract for the purchase of a farm, consisting of sixty acres and appurtenances, situated in North Brunswick, Middlesex County, N. J., and known as the Cadwell Farm. The price agreed upon was $10,000, payable in instalments; $1,000 was paid down in confirmation of the contract, and a penalty of $2,000 affixed to the contract as a condition for its faithful performance. The contract was fulfilled to the extent of defendant paying the $1,000 down and entering into possession of the premises, after which he discovered that in regard to the number of fruit trees, berry bushes and vines on the premises there was misrepresentation, and in respect to the fruitfulness of those that were there, there was misrepresentation also, and to such an extent as to warrant him in repudiating the contract and refusing to complete the fulfillment. The plaintiff claims that the farm was all that it was represented to be, and even if it were not the defendant had ample opportunity to examine and decide on its value before signing the contract. Defendant claimed that he was justified in relying on the representations of the plaintiff, especially in relation to the fruitfulness of the trees, &c., and that, by reason of such misrepresentations, he has sustained damages to the extent of $10,000, which he pleads as an offset, and for which he asks judgment over and above anything the plaintiff may be entitled to. Three days have been exhausted in the production of conflicting testimony as to what the representations were, and whether those alleged to have been made were established by the facts.

The case submitted to the jury, with directions to bring in a sealed verdict, in the morning, if agreed.

SUPERIOR COURT—SPECIAL TERM—MAY 13.

Before Judge McCunn.

ALIMONY—IMPRISONMENT.

Rebecca Prescott vs. Charles R. Prescott.—This was a motion to vacate an attachment for the non-payment of counsel fees and alimony in a divorce suit, and involves the question whether a man is to be imprisoned for not doing what is beyond his power to do. An order was made directing the payment by defendant of $250 counsel fee, and $20 a week alimony during the pendency of the action. Defendant's counsel claimed that no defence was proposed to the motion for allimony and counsel fees, but that plaintiff's testimony to sustain a decree she could go ahead and get it, and the sooner it was determined the better he (defendant) would be pleased, and with a view to a speedy determination the counsel for plaintiff was urged to hasten the hearing. Defendant's counsel argued, however, that plaintiff seemed much more diligent in prosecuting the motion for allimony and counsel fees than the action itself; and, moreover, that defendant is worth nothing, and the plaintiff has $8,000; and that it is unjust to demand $250 for prosecuting a suit not legitimately worth $50, and that it is more unjust to make unreasonable in themselves and impossible for defendant to perform, and then punish him for their non-performance. The Court took the papers and reserved the decision, in the meantime recommitting the defendant to the custody of the Sheriff.

H. F. Shearman for motion; John W. Holcomb opposing.

COMMON PLEAS—TRIAL TERM.

Before Judge Barrett and a Jury.

$10,000 DAMAGES AGAINST A TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

Richard S. Waring and Henry King vs. the United States Telegraph Company.—This case, the facts of which have been noticed in the Times during the progress of the trial, was yesterday brought to a conclusion by a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs for the sum of $6,000 with interest, amounting in all to about $10,000. The main facts of the case, which must prove of interest to business men and telegraph companies, are as follows: Between 12 and 2 o'clock in the day of the plaintiffs, who were oil merchants in the City of Pittsburgh, handed into the office of defendant and paid for two telegrams addressed to Macy & Sons, of this City, directing them to sell, on their account, 2,000 barrels of petroleum, the market price being $2 cents. The agent of the defendant neglected to forward the dispatches, although at the time of their being left in the office defendant's agent gave assurance that they would reach New-York in an hour. Later in the afternoon plaintiffs desired to send a third dispatch, varying the time of delivery of the 2,000 barrels which they supposed already sold, and on going to defendant's office were informed that the time was out of the order, and if they was in a portant they had better go to another telegraph office. The telegram was accordingly sent through the other office, and on its receipt by Macy & Sons they at once say there was a link wanting (not having received the previous message,) and telegraphed in reply that they did not understand it. With this response in his hand, one of the plaintiffs went to the office of defendant, and determined to fathom the mystery; and, reading the message to defendant's agent, desired to be assured if his former dispatches had really gone as they had previously stated. The agent said they had, but he would go up to the operator's room and see, and, as the witness testified, the plaintiff followed him up so close that he was in the operator's room as soon as he was, and there under thirty or forty other messages, he found his dispatches, neither of which had been forwarded as represented. It was shown on behalf of plaintiffs that the oil could have been readily sold at Pittsburgh at the time if the telegrams had been promptly forwarded; that at the time the third dispatch was sent, if plaintiffs had not been deceived by defendant's agent, they would have immediately communicated their instructions by another company in time to make the sale, but that at the time the neglect was discovered, it was too late. The result was that the day succeeding the day on which it was in the highest price plaintiffs could succeed in getting was 72 cents, the difference between which and 82 cents (the price they could have obtained but for defendant's neglect) they recognized as the damage the company sought to evade the responsibility on the ground that its line had been broken by the elements without its fault, and that the message might have been sent when the neglect was discovered in time to effect the sale, if plaintiffs had so requested; but the jury thought there was not only neglect on the part of the Company's agents, but also apparently concealment and misrepresentation, and found against them accordingly, and in favor of plaintiffs.

POLICE COURTS.

The Tombs—Dowling, Justice.

A BURGLAR CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

Henry Lyon keeps a liquor store at 225 Pearl-street, and about 2 o'clock yesterday he was aroused by the noise of some person moving about the saloon. On making an investigation he discovered a man, giving the name of John Williams, in the place, in the act of packing up a quantity of cigars and liquors valued at $20. Williams was given into the custody of an officer, and subsequently arraigned before Justice Dowling, at the Tombs, who locked him up for trial at the General Sessions. The entrance to the saloon had been effected through the skylight.

ROBBERY WITH VIOLENCE.

Edward Peters, a non-resident of the City, entered the liquor saloon No. 23 Centre-street, at an early hour yesterday morning, where he obtained a drink. While standing in front of the bar, Prince was suddenly assaulted by Christian Siberiick, who struck him a violent blow in the face with his fist, knocking him down, and then held his forcibly over the bar, while he took from his pocket of $69 in cash, which the victim carried in his pantaloons pocket. The unfortunate countryman called forth in search of a policeman, by whom Jacob Silberiick was shortly arrested and arraigned him before Justice DOWLING, who held him for trial in default of bail. The money was not recovered.

AN INGENIOUS ROBBERY IN A BANK.

Yesterday morning Mr. Silas G. W. Brown, of No. 48 Liberty-street, called at the Chatham Bank, and on presenting a check for $600, he received that sum in payment. He then laid the money on the ledge near the paying teller's window in, order to verify the amount. While he was engaged in counting the bills a man who gave the name of Charles E. Cassell stepped up to him and presented a piece of paper which was written on a slip. Cassell inquired if Brown knew where the person lived, and Brown replied in the negative. The applicant walked away and tore up the paper. Mr. Brown, on turning to resume his examination of the money, discovered that it had been carried off, so he followed Cassell and secured the arrest. The prisoner was subsequently taken before Justice Dowling at the Tombs by Officer Curtis, of the Twenty-fifth Precinct, when he was fully committed for trial. Cassell denied the theft, although the evidence seemed dead against him.

SHOPLIFTER.

Thomas Taylor, of No. 145 Crosby-street, entered the store of Entz, Hermann & Co., Nos. 109 and 110 Bowery, yesterday morning, and took stealthily possession of three pieces of white Marseilles, valued at $18. Mr. Hermann, on the theft and found in possession of the property, when arrested by Detective Tilley, of the Third Ward. On being arraigned before the Magistrate the prisoner was held for trial.

Jefferson Market—Dodge, Justice.

BURGLARY.

David L. Thompson, of No. 219 Eighth-avenue, charged Louis Blanc, aged 20, living at Fifteenth-street and Ninth-avenue, with having feloniously entered his premises and taken therefrom a quantity of United States currency, bills and fractional currency, amounting to $60. Pleading guilty, Thompson was committed to answer without bail.

BREACH OF TRUST.

John Frederick, a pawnbroker, living at No. 184 Spring-street, charged his clerk, John F. O'Connor, a Chicago boy, aged 14 years, and who lives at No. 194 Seventh-avenue, with having carried on a systematic course of embezzlement for some time back. The boy acknowledged having taken money amounting to $150, for which he is committed to answer in default of $400.

YOUNG ROGUES.

William Stallard and Edward Cafe, two boys, were charged with having stolen four bolts, worth $18, from Max Marks, of No. 112 Second-street. They are held to answer at the General Sessions on $500 bail.

Joseph L. Stone, an intelligence office keeper, was charged with defrauding Reg. Buckingham, of No. 309 Hester-street, of $2, under a false pretence of securing him a position as traveling agent. He was further accused of defrauding Thos. Hersley, a stranger in the City, of another $2, under pretence of procuring him a situation in a brewery. Committed for trial at the General Sessions; $500 bail in each case.

THURSDAY, May 13—P. M.

Gold and Foreign Bills were somewhat unsettled to-day. The former opened weak, and after 12 o'clock noon, when Messrs. HENRY CLEWS & Co. took $1,000,000 of the Treasury at 138.41 ⅌ cent., the sales ranged 138¾@138⅝@138¾ ⅌ cent. There was a better offering of Exchange on London, and the rates were ¼ ⅌ cent. on the average cheaper than yesterday, and the demand less active; Bankers' 60-days, 109¼@109⅝ ⅌ cent., and Sight, 109⅞@110⅛ ⅌ cent. Of Sight or Short Sight Bills a considerable amount is making against U. S. 5-20s, the purchases of which for transmission abroad have been renewed with much spirit in the last day or two. The expected further rise in the Bank of England rate of interest did not take place at the weekly Court of Directors this morning, and the English as well as the American Funds are quoted higher by the Cable.

The market for Money is working easy at 7 ⅌ cent. to the Brokers, on call, and at 7 to 9 ⅌ cent. for prime Merchant paper. Some considerable balances are left with the leading Stock firms, at 6 ⅌ cent. from day to day. The Treasury paid out $334,000 for Gold Interest to-day.

The Public Funds through the morning were more distinguished by the general firmness of prices than by activity of business, but this changed later in the day, when the transactions were large at the 2:15 P. M. Board. Although the Brokers, in opposition to the present rise, seem wary of putting out large short contracts, some considerable sales were made in realisation of profits, but there seemed to be two new buyers to one seller, and the market closed firm. The 5-20s of 1862, coupons, sold at 119¾, and the 5-20s of 1867 at 118@118¼ ⅌ cent. The Southern State Bonds were again in good request—the quotations about the same as yesterday.

After the early business in the New-York and Western Railways there was a break in the market, ranging from 1 to 1½ ⅌ cent., and the same reaction was noticeable in Pacific Mail and some other of the Miscellaneous Shares. But the depression seemed, with few exceptions, to be momentary, the 2:30 P. M. Board showing a fair degree of firmness again. The weakest point in the Western list seemed to be Michigan Southern, on some vague rumor that there is a hitch in the Lake Shore Consolidation, which we have no reason to believe can prove serious, if indeed any difficulty whatever has occurred. Chicago and Rock Island also fluctuated somewhat singularly, and for no assigned reason. New-York Central still hesitates because of the delay of action upon the Scrip and Consolidation bills by Governor HOFFMAN. He is said to be in the City to-day and may not return to the Executive Office in Albany before Monday next.

After the late Boards broke up the following quotations were made as compared with Wednesday night:

ARAMN & CO. report the exchange in the trade Rio, during the week, as having increased 600 bags Laguayra, 108 bags Maracaibo, and 90 bags Costa Rica. The stock of other than Rio includes, of Java, (Government,) 2,400 bags; Java, 43,700 bags; Maracaibo, 2,800 bags; Maracaibo, 5,275 bags; Laguayra, 9,124 bags; Costa Rica, 1,910 bags; Manilla, 4,700 bags; Savanilla, 944 bags, and Bonaire, 1,397 bags.

COTTON—Has been more sought after, and quoted somewhat firmer. Sales have been reported since our last of 3,228 bales, including 1,100 bales to shippers, 1,128 bales to spinners, and 1,000 bales speculators. Also 200 bales Low Middling, for May delivery, at 27¼c. ⅌ ℔. The receipts have been 308 bales; and the export clearances 1,870 bales, including 670 bales by the steamer Hermann for Bremen; and 1,200 bbls. by the steamer Kangaroo for Liverpool, and the bales by the steamer Kangaroo for Liverpool, and the bales by the steamer Hermann for Bremen.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

EUROPE.

Five hundred persons who took part in the recent religious riots in Teheran, Persia, have been arrested by the authorities.

In an editorial, yesterday, the London Times repeats its statement that Great Britain, in submitting to an arbitration on the Alabama claims question at all, conceded everything that was originally demanded or expected by the American people, and everything that it was possible to concede.

GENERAL.

Our correspondent in the coal regions reports that the miners' strike had extended, yesterday, to nearly all the mines south of and around Wilkesbarre, and to some in the vicinity of Pittston. Of the thirty thousand miners in the anthracite region, fully one-half are among the strikers. The continuance of the strike largely depends on the action of the workmen for the large companies around Scranton and Carbondale. These have not yet quit work. The striking miners, it is asserted, have no clear idea of what they strike for; they simply obey the order of their Central Committee.

The Lower House of the Connecticut Legislature ratified the Fifteenth Amendment to the National Constitution yesterday, by a vote of 126 to 104; seven were absent or not voting. One man classed among the Republicans voted against ratification; he, however, was elected from a Democratic town on a local issue. The expression of the Legislature is now given on this question, as the Senate ratified the amendment last week, as was stated at the time.

A bill for the annexation to Boston of Dorchester, its largest suburb, passed the Massachusetts Senate yesterday. The project of enlarging the city still more by adding to it the City of Charlestown and the town of Somerville, is under consideration in the Legislature.

A Montreal dispatch states that information has been received there to the effect that the Privy Council in England is considering the advisability of relinquishing all her Colonies excepting India.

Members of the family of Hon. C. C. Cox, Ex-Commissioner of Patents, were seriously injured by the upsetting and breaking of the carriage in which they were riding on Wednesday in Washington. The horse had become frightened at a train of cars. Miss Cox, the eldest daughter of the Governor, had her arm badly fractured, and was otherwise hurt, and a lady with her was badly cut about the face and head.

News from Sacramento has been received in Springfield, Mass., of the arrival there of a train of Springfield cars, which were the first to cross the continent.

A Pittsburg oil firm yesterday obtained a verdict against the United States Telegraph Company, in the Court of Common Pleas, for damages amounting to $19,000 for not transmitting a business telegram.

A proposition to consolidate the Boston and Lowell, Nashua and Lowell, Nashua and Concord, Northern, Vermont Central, and Ogdensburg Railroads, under the name of the "Great Northern Railroad," with a capital stock limited to the capital stock and amount of indebtedness of the several roads with the roads and steamboat lines now leased by them, is before the Massachusetts Legislature.

A suit has been instituted against the bondsmen of THOMAS G. GERRISH, the defaulting City Treasurer of Lowell, Mass., for the recovery of the amount—$2,397 91—overdrawn by him on the Railroad National Bank of that city.

It is reported that the mercury stood at 98 in the shade in Concord, N. H., on Wednesday.

In the Court of Common Pleas for the decision of Commonwealth cases, at Harrisburg, Penn., the cases against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, and the Lackawanna and Bloomsburg Railroad Company were decided yesterday. In these cases the claim of the Companies was that their bonds, on which tax was imposed, were mostly held by residents of New-York and other States, and that Pennsylvania could not tax the property of citizens of other States. The Court decided that if the property was protected by Pennsylvania it could be made to pay its share of taxation. Judgment was rendered against the former Company for $20,000, and against the latter Company for $25,000.

The trial of JOHN W. VAN NETTA, the alleged wedding-party poisoner, at Warsaw, Ind., has terminated in the conviction of the accused, with a sentence of two years in the Penitentiary. One of his victims died from the effects of the poison given.

Several serious accidents occurred yesterday in collieries near Wilkesbarre, Penn., and at Hyde Park. Nine miners were severely injured, and some perhaps fatally.

A fire in Hudson, N. Y., yesterday, destroyed several small buildings and shops on Partition-street, and the dwelling-house of one ALVIN CALKINS. The loss is estimated at about $6,000, and the insurance in the vicinity of $4,000. As a high wind was blowing at the time, a more serious fire was with difficulty prevented.

PFAU, the Russian athlete, with the Hanlon troupe, while performing one of his daring feats on the trapeze at the Springfield, Mass., Opera House, on Wednesday night, fell heading to the floor. He was seriously but not dangerously hurt.

A party of wealthy Germans, residents of Memphis, while enjoying an excursion on the Mississippi in a miniature steamboat, on Sunday evening last, were thrown in the water by the upsetting of the boat, and five of the number were drowned. The boat was a model, of about half the size of a common tug or tow-boat, and was built by the owner to illustrate a different kind of wheel from that in general use.

A National Baggage Agents' and Express Messengers' Assurance Company was formed at a meeting of general baggage agents in Philadelphia yesterday, similar in its character to that of the railroad conductors', recently formed.

The St. Louis and Illinois Bridge Company has begun operations in earnest on the Illinois side of the Mississippi.

The New-York and New-Haven Railroad Company proposes to erect a new depot in New-Haven, and they ask the Connecticut Legislature for permission to take lands for that purpose.

Chief-Justice CHASE will open Court in Charleston, S. C., on the 18th.

The case of MESSNER, now under sentence of death in Rochester, is about to be presented to Governor HOFFMAN, with an application for commutation of sentence. The testimony in the case has already been sent to Albany. All or nearly all of the jurors who convicted Messner have signed the paper requesting a change of sentence. It is understood that all were pledged to do this by the recommendation to mercy which accompanied the verdict.

Presiding Justice CLERKE, of the Supreme Court, yesterday granted writs of habeas corpus and certiorari in the matter of ANNE E. PEARSALL and JOANNA CONNOR, who for several days past have been confined in the Tombs for contempt of an order of the Supreme Court made by Judge CARDOZO. The writs are made returnable at 10 A. M. to-day before the Judge last named.

The Common Council yesterday directed their Clerk to compile the Corporation Manual for 1869 and to publish 15,000 copies thereof. A resolution to appropriate $20,000 for celebrating the Fourth of July was laid over. The Street Commissioner was directed to remove the gas lamps in Park-row to the inner side of the Park railing, and to confer with the telegraph companies in relation to the removal of the telegraph poles. A large number of streets were directed to be paved with Belgian pavement.

The anniversary exhibition of the New-York Institution for the Blind took place last evening in Steinway Hall. There was a large audience, and the entertainment proved very successful.

A meeting of Sunday School teachers took place last evening at Grace Chapel, in Fourteenth-street, to form an organization to be called the Sunday-School Association of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the City and County of New-York. Dr. GALLAUDET, of St. Ann's Church, presided.

Cotton was in more demand yesterday at rather firmer prices. Flour and Wheat attracted less attention at less buoyant prices. Oats were decidedly lower and slow of sale. Corn was in good demand and firmer. Provisions were in moderate request. Groceries were rather more sought after. Refined Petroleum was active here, and quiet at Philadelphia. Crude was lower and dull. Freights dull.

The receipts of live stock for the past week embrace 7,208 Cattle; 77 Milch Cows; 2,268 Calves; 19,048 Sheep and Lambs, and 30,286 Swine. Trade in Beef Cattle is dull, with slow sales, at 15c.@16c. ℔ lb. for the best bullocks. Extra-fattened Beeves, in a few instances, were sold for 16½c. ℔ lb. Common Cattle, 12c.@14c. ℔ lb., net weight of about 60 lbs., ℔ 100 lbs. gross weight. Good Milch Cows are in better request, but are unusually scarce. They would find a ready sale at $60@90 each, if good. Sheep are dull at depressed rates. Most of the sales seem to be made at about 6c.@7½c. ℔ lb., live weight. Occasionally selected lots are sold at 8c.@10c. ℔ lb., but thousands are worth only 4c.@6c. ℔ lb. Swine are steady at 9½c.@10¾c. ℔ lb., live weight; dressed, corn-fattened, 12c.@12½c. ℔ lb.

Law and Order in the South.

A strenuous effort was made in the Anti-Slavery Convention, on Wednesday, to revive expiring prejudices concerning the condition of society in the South, with especial reference to the rights and interests of colored citizens and Northern "loyalists." One of the expelled Georgia legislators was asked whether he considered his life safe in that State, and he responded that no man's life, who stands on the loyal side, is safe in Georgia outside of the large cities. The question was pressed in other forms, and always with a somewhat similar result; the evident aim being to produce an impression that Kuklux and rebels still dominate in the South, and that the staunch Republican, white or black, is all the time in jeopardy. Mr. WENDELL PHILLIPS likened the white Southerner to "the bull-dog that, having been taught for twenty years to spring at every passer by, could not change his nature in a day." The ladies were equally ferocious; a colored Mrs. HARPER declaring that "there is no civilized country in the world where there has been so much, murdering as has been going on recently at the South." For the object of these representations we have not far to seek. A case against Georgia and the unreconstructed States is desired as an excuse for harsh action, and the story of murder for political causes is the best that can be concocted for the purpose.

We are more than skeptical on this subject. We do not believe these tales of wholesale murder and oppression, nor do we give credence to the allegation that "loyalists" are systematically persecuted and hunted down. There was a time, undoubtedly, when in some localities a hostile spirit ran high, and when the assertion of Republican opinion involved more or less peril; but trustworthy evidence seems to show that this state of things no longer exists. So far as we can judge, life and property are quite as secure at the South as at the North. Taking population into account, we are convinced that the percentage of crime is no greater anywhere in the South, and certainly not in Georgia, than in the North or West. For every murder committed there we will undertake to find a murder here. For every outrage that admits of verification in Georgia, we will trace a parallel outrage in Indiana or New-York. Nay, we are persuaded that, all things considered, there is less crime in Virginia, in South Carolina, in Alabama, and even in Georgia, than in this State or in other parts of the North. This City could easily supply a chapter of horrors, of recent date, which, by a parity of reasoning, Southern observers might cite as proofs of savagery and demoralization. Such an application of facts would be unwarranted, but it would be not less legitimate than the endeavor of the Anti-Slavery Society fanatics to arraign the whole South for the acts of its criminal class. It is absurd to look for a greater average of virtue, or greater immunity from crime there than we are contented with here. What Georgia and its neighbors may fairly plead is, that in respect of offences against person and property, they have nothing to fear from comparison with Massachusetts or Michigan. And this is all we are entitled to expect.

But, we are told, the South does not welcome loud-tongued loyalists as cordially as they think they should be welcomed. Mr. FORNEY, who has been spying out the nakedness of the land in company with a party like unto himself, publicly complains that they went about without being worshiped. He does not allege that they were insulted. He does not pretend that they had any apprehension as to their personal safety. He does not deny that homes await all who seek them with a decent respect for the feelings and opinions of the present population. But he objects that the entire South did not take him and his friends at their own valuation, and that it receives coldly those who go there as professional politicians, or who insist, when settling, that they shall be esteemed as the only loyal, the only righteous, members of the community. These objections and complaints are very foolish. In the first place, Southern citizens have as good a right as Northern citizens to choose their company and friends, and may as properly discriminate in their welcome to new-comers. In the next place, the men who go South expecting to make a business of politics, and who denounce every one who refuses to vote their ticket, are a nuisance in any locality, and are not entitled anywhere to courtesy or consideration.

The South should be judged, not by its feeling toward demagogues and adventurers, but by its treatment of strangers of any nationality who go there in good faith, prepared to settle down and become useful citizens. In regard to this class, we see no reason to doubt that they are gladly received, or that they share the protection of good laws, administered impartially and effectively. There may be exceptional localities, but so there are in the West. Indeed, the conditions of welcome in Virginia or Georgia do not essentially differ from those which obtain in Kansas or Minnesota. And the supremacy of law and order is, as a rule, as well assured in the one case as in the other.

Lopez Redivivus.

President LOPEZ is holding a strong position in the interior, with nine thousand men and forty guns. The Allies are "preparing" to attack him. Such is the intelligence from the seat of war in Paraguay, through Brazilian channels, and it is exactly what might have been anticipated from the course of the Paraguayan war since its commencement. LOPEZ is periodically "defeated," his strongholds are "destroyed," his forces are "annihilated," and he himself appears as a "fugitive," accompanied only by a few "stragglers." A few weeks generally elapse after the receipt of intelligence to this effect, during which every one expects by every mail to hear of the capitulation of LOPEZ and the establishment of the Provisional Government so long talked of by the Allies. But after long delay, it becomes manifest that there is a hitch somewhere. And then, with unvarying regularity, there comes a dispatch announcing that LOPEZ has reappeared at some point where he was least expected, with a force which—assuming the correctness of Brazilian statistics of his losses—can only consist of resuscitated Paraguayan corpses, and that the Allies are about to commence a great campaign instead of inaugurating a Provisional Government. These have been the regularly recurring phases of Rio Janeiro war news for years past. And as far as we can yet see, they may still repeat themselves over again. LOPEZ with nine thousand men and forty guns in the interior is as powerful as he was with twice that force within range of the Brazilian iron-clads. And if ever there was a doubt as to the determination of the Paraguayans to rally round LOPEZ to the last man, and die in defence of his cause, it must have been dispelled by this time. The extraordinary hold which he possesses on the devotion of that singular race has already been tested sufficiently to show how little likelihood there is of it being loosened even by the extremity of reverses. Time, however, must ultimately bring matters to a crisis. We may hear once or twice again of the destruction and reappearance of the Paraguayan army, but it cannot be very long before the war comes to one of the only two possible terminations—the extermination of the Paraguayan race or the abandonment of the contest by the Allies.

The Gift of Gab.

The blessings which are to fall upon us if we annex St. Domingo daily increase and multiply. We are not only to secure the "wise and moderate BAEZ," a body of "orderly and inoffensive natives," and "abundant crops," but now Professor GABB tells us that there are in St. Domingo "two hundred miles of gold-bearing territory, surpassing in richness any known portion of California and Arizona." Shall we any longer look this gift-horse in the mouth?

This grave news Messrs. FISH and FARRAND, we are told, are now deeply cogitating; true, there is more gold in California and Arizona than our mining population will dig out during the rest of the century; and, for aught we know, as much more in Colorado and Alaska as in California and Arizona. But it is a great thing to annex a new gold field; it is pleasant to talk of fresh "auriferous tracts." We understood this when we annexed Alaska; and the accounts of "gold discoveries on the Stickeen" aroused a curiosity which talk of seals and whales had failed to excite. In like manner, such stimulants as coffee and tobacco awaken no interest whatever in St. Domingo; but "the gold field of two hundred square miles between the Nigua and Joina"—that touches us in a tender spot. GABB and his gold will splendidly reinforce the patriotism of BANKS and BAEZ, and the diplomacy of FARRAND and AUGHEARD.

But the most sacred enterprises are not safe from calumny, and we find in the columns of a contemporary a St. Domingo letter positively declaring that "nobody knows where the placers of the gold fields of Columbia are, nor is it true that rich gold veins have been discovered on the Nigua. All this news is pure invention of those who are desirous to become rich by speculating on the destinies of this country." This betrays a shocking incredulity regarding GABB; and next we shall even find somebody denying the late intelligence that "the natives consider annexation the greatest possible blessing."

A Tariff for Revenue—The Boston and New-York Reformers.

We have already spoken of the wise and moderate course of the "Reform League" in Boston, at their late Convention. The four cardinal points of their resolutions, it will be remembered, were a reform of the Civil Service, opposition to special legislation, a tariff for revenue and the repealing of duties on the raw materials of important manufacture.

This remarkably sensible programme we commend to the attention of the "Free Trade League" in New-York. The latter body, though embracing some of our most influential and practical citizens, is allowing itself, we are persuaded, to be too much influenced by certain doctrinaires in its ranks.

Absolute free trade is an ideal far in advance of the times, which no country has at all approached as yet in its legislation. When the spirit of modern civilization and profound economical truths has imbued the Governments of all the leading nations of the world, they may reach a condition in which all exchanges shall be as free with each other as they are now between the several States of the American Union, and the necessary taxation for the expenses of Governments shall be apportioned so as to weigh as lightly as possible on production. Then undoubtedly labor, in the increased purchasing power of its wages, will receive more nearly than it has ever done before its fair share of the profits of production. But not even then will the millenium be at hand. As Mr. MILL has recently said, free trade is not the perfection of human arrangements; it is to be sought because, on the whole, it is better than Government interference, inasmuch as people are more likely to understand their own material interests, than Governments are to understand them for them. But when perfectly free exchange is secured, the profounder problems of the relations of capital and labor, the mode of checking official corruption and promoting popular education, may still remain unsolved.

We need not say that this country is at an immense distance from the attainment of such an ideal. For many years to come we shall be compelled to have a very considerable tariff for revenue to meet the expenses of Government and for the payment of the public debt. Whatever may be our abstract ideas as to modes of taxation, the practical legislator must be aware that three hundred millions could never by any possibility be raised in this country by direct taxation. We must have indirect taxation. We must have internal revenue and customs taxes, and the true point for reformers to aim at, is that these taxes should be laid with the least practicable injury to the productive powers of the country. To shout for "Free Trade" is simply Quixotic; to struggle with the Boston reformers for a revenue tariff is wise and statesmanlike.

The Massachusetts programme has drawn to it not only the enthusiastic moral reformers, but the most solid merchants and some of the leading manufacturers. It takes in the great medium conservative class, who are now opposed to high protection, but are not yet ready for absolute free trade. It stands toward the New-York platform somewhat in the reverse position in which the two cities stood on the slavery question. In this instance Boston is the moderate Republican and New-York the radical Abolitionist.

It is true that in every great moral struggle some party or school must utter absolute principles, without regard to practical results. But victory is sure to rest finally on the banners of the moderate party.

"Reform of the Civil Service," all parties profess to desire. "Special legislation" is more and more denounced by every one but those who live upon it. "Relaxation of duties on raw materials" is a very taking cry, and a very necessary duty, though it may not always be easy to make practical application of the principle. What is raw material to one branch of industry is the final product of another. Thus, lumber is the raw material for all building, but is the product of the home lumber business. Wool, to take Mr. ATKINSON's definition, "enters into the process of (Eastern) labor," and therefore, according to his inference, should be freed from duty; but it is also "the result of (Western) labor" among the sheep-raisers, and therefore should pay its tax. Pig-iron is indeed almost indispensable for the processes of manufacture, and should be burdened with as light duties as possible; but it is also the result of an important branch of production. These considerations show that the removal of taxes from raw materials may be attended with some logical inconsistency, and, perhaps, some practical difficulty. The general principle, however, is sufficiently intelligible to render its application feasible, especially in conjunction with a systematic simplification of the tariff.

It is impossible, however, to exclude "protection" from the question—the point to be aimed at being its limitation to the results of manufacture, rather than to those raw materials which are the means of manufacture. Moreover, it should be incidental, as a result of the revenue, rather than an object to be sought regardless of the revenue.

Revenue reform, as inaugurated at Boston, derives much of its strength from a combined consideration for the interests of the Treasury and the manufacturing interests which have grown up under the present system. It is a movement which seems likely to draw after it in our community nearly all the merchants, many of the manufacturers and the immense majority of the consumers. It is a measure sound in economics, practical in bearing and consistent with the views of those who supported formerly moderate protection. It would take off fully one-half the load which now rests on American productions. The rich would no longer constantly grow richer, and the poor poorer, but wealth would increase with all. The purchasing power of wages and salaries would be immensely augmented. Monopolies would be weakened. There would still be heavy taxes to pay, but they would rest more equally on all; and a few great luxuries would bear a large part of our burdens.

The Religious Riots in Persia.

The intelligence that fierce religious conflicts had taken place in the streets of Teheran, and only repressed by the troops after three hundred people had been killed, imparts a decided element of variety to cable dispatches, which have recently been composed all but exclusively of reports of English articles on the Alabama claims, utterances of NAPOLEON or BISMARCK, Irish Church bill divisions, and squabbles in the Spanish Cortes. And though, at first sight, the fact that the members of two religious sects in Persia have been killing each other, and getting themselves arrested—after the manner of religious sects in more enlightened countries—may not appear of any very startling importance to other people, there is still one aspect of the affair in which it assumes considerable significance. We are not told what two sects they were that thus engaged in mortal combat, or what the apple of discord was, but it is at least presumable that the affair is in some way connected with the recent religious troubles in Persia which so nearly brought about the intervention of Turkey, and were supposed, probably not without reason, to have had their origin in Russian intrigue, designed to weaken and embarrass the Turkish Government by embroiling it in a war with that of the Shah. The Turks, it must be remembered, are exclusively Sconnes, or "orthodox Mohammedans," who recognize the legitimacy of the three immediate successors of the Prophet, and ascribe to their writings and sayings a sacred character only second to that of the Koran itself. The Persians, on the other hand, are mainly Sheeahs, who assert that ALI, nephew and fourth in succession to MOHAMMED, was the first legitimate Caliph after his death, and between these two branches of Islam there exists a bitter and fanatical hatred. There are also minor sects among Mohammedans, but as these are the two main subdivisions, it is most probable that it is between them that a conflict of such extraordinary rancor has broken out.

Although the difficulty between Turkey and Persia was terminated by concessions on the part of the latter Power with suspicious celerity as soon as the settlement of the Greek question and the improved prospects of peace in Western Europe deprived Russia of any immediate opportunity for prosecuting her schemes of aggression in the direction of Constantinople, it is likely enough that she would still seek to incite the religious hatred of the Persians against the Turks, and thus secure a most valuable ally when the time does come for action. And on this account, should it appear that adherents of the Turkish branch of the faith have been aggrieved, as in any way affected by these disturbances, it would be difficult to restrain Turkish fanaticism, and the matter might thus eventually prove one of universal European interest. The Eastern question is still as fruitful a source of danger to Europe as ever, and a very little would suffice to bring it up once more in its most dangerous form.

The Anti-Slavery Society Gives It Up.

WENDELL PHILLIPS has at last succumbed. Of late years the American Anti-Slavery Society has been busy in trying to invent some excuse for (metaphorically) hanging together. Mr. GARRISON formally mustered the Society out of service long ago, and pronounced a parting benediction upon its honorable career. But WENDELL PHILLIPS did not like to "give it up so." Slavery was dead—no doubt about that—and the idea of "warring against the dead" was absurd. Nevertheless, he and the faithful struggled hard; and a "society in search of a subject" was the pitiable spectacle they presented. The Kuklux outrages were a God-send, but they stopped. The "dangers of the future" were as manna from heaven, but the Fourteenth Amendment checked the shower. Impartial suffrage was a fine war-cry, but the Fifteenth Amendment silenced it. At last, after dragging around the dead corpse of slavery, as in the old Roman penalty, so long, it has at last apparently become too offensive to bear. WENDELL PHILLIPS has himself just announced that "the passage of the Fifteenth Amendment would finish the work of the Society as an organized body."

What! Stop short of "social equality?" Yes; Mr. PHILLIPS says that "the social equality of the black race will have to be worked out by their own exertion"—an idea, however, which perhaps somebody else may denounce as heresy, and read Mr. PHILLIPS out of the Anti-Slavery Society next year, so that he will miss the honor of closing up the "Society's work," after all. Meanwhile it is amusing to see this little knot of people talking of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments as "the Society's work." It quite recalls the fly on the wheel.

And it is amusing to note, too, the struggles even of the old, garrulous speakers to find something to talk about. Mr. PHILLIPS diverged to Cuba, and wanted a black Secretary of State in place of Mr. FISH, and a black man at St. James'. Mr. SUMNER (colored) said he was a candidate for the Savannah Postmastership, but would take what he could get. FRED. DOUGLASS put out the best idea, namely, "let the negro alone." And Mr. PHILLIPS wound up the first day's session by declaring "there was no civil Government in Manhattan." On the second and last day subjects had become very scarce, and there was atrocious "filibustering for space." Mrs. GREW proposed doubling subscriptions to the Standard; Dr. HALLOCK tilted against Romanism; Mrs. HARPER remarked that there was no civilized country in the world where there had been so much murdering as recently at the South; Mr. STEBBINS was understood to state that over a thousand negroes were murdered in cold blood in one Louisiana parish, last Summer; then came Cuba and homesteads again; and then Mr. PHILLIPS gave it up, and made the announcement already referred to.

But, before the moribund Society could get itself adjourned, Mr. FOSTER called up his hobby of "homesteads for everybody," and put this strong and pungent dilemma to the Society: "Either," said he, "all are equally entitled to a house over their heads, or some are entitled to it and others are not." This knock-down argument was the coup de grace for the Society, which straightway adjourned, Mr. FOSTER loudly protesting that "the work of the Society was not yet done, and it must not disband until it was," and his speech forming a fine closing satire on the proceedings.

The truth of the matter is this—anti-slavery is dead and buried, and has been for years; woman's rights is now having its innings. The other cause is but as a flickering penny dip to the rising sun; and this even Mr. PHILLIPS has at last acknowledged.

A Tight Spot.

Governor HOFFMAN is evidently having a struggle with some of the Railroad bills which the Legislature left behind for him to sign at its adjournment. The bill, for example, by which FISK, Jr., GOULD, LANE & Co. keep themselves in office as Directors of the Erie Railroad, for which they have done so much and for which they hope to do so much more, must be rather a bitter pill for him to swallow, if he finally concludes to swallow it at all; and he is therefore keeping it till the last. On the one hand he is to consider that it is one of the most flagrant outrages ever perpetrated on a body of helpless stockholders, in the interest of a few reckless and unscrupulous stock-jobbers. On the other that the Ring demand its being signed in order to keep themselves in funds for the coming campaign. It is rather a nice question for the Governor,—and will test his quality rather more severely than anything else he has had before him during his term. We shall wait patiently, and watch with a good deal of anxious curiosity, for the result.

MINOR TOPICS.

It is now said that Mr. MOTLEY is to have "instructions" on going to England,—but they do not seem likely to be very important. It seems he will be instructed to "watch the progress of events, and to report the communications which the British Government may make to him." We presume he can do that, but it seems scarcely worth while to arrest the completion of his books about the Dutch Republic for such a service. Mr. GREELEY, or for that matter Mr. JAY, might have been sent as Minister to England after all.

Mr. JESSE R. GRANT has been for some time Postmaster at Covington, Ky., and it seems that President GRANT has not seen fit to remove him, although he is his own father. For this instance of atrocious favoritism, the Louisville Journal and other papers, are denouncing him unmercifully. This certainly seems to us like pushing things to rather an absurd extent. Quite a large class of newspapers have been abusing the President for putting relatives into office, which was intelligible to say the least; but why he should be expected to turn men out of office for no other offence than that of being connections of his family, we do not exactly comprehend.

By the original contract for street-cleaning the sum of $800,000 was to be paid for cleaning the streets. This contract was sold to Judge WHITING, who paid nearly $600,000 for it. As his object was to make some money by the operation, and he was to get only $600,000, he could only expend $400,000 for the work if he hoped to save himself. He has now sold the contract back to its original holders, who must get their money back, so that they can only expend what is left of the $400,000 after they have paid for the contract. After it has been sold once or twice more, there will be absolutely nothing left to spend on street-cleaning. It won't make much difference practically.

If we may believe the newspapers, it would seem that at least two of the members of GRANT'S Cabinet permit themselves to talk upon public questions and policy to persons who hasten to put their remarks in print. They must be more cautious about their company and more reserved in their expression, or they will soon diminish their reputation for wisdom and statesmanship. In at least one of the cases referred to, we cannot believe that the Secretary whose name is used, gave utterance to the language attributed to him. It is altogether too absurd; but such publications may warn Cabinet officers of the necessity of guarding their language, and confining their communications to the regular channels. MACHIAVELLI was a bad political moralist, but his ideas regarding the manners of a statesman are well worthy of attention.

Miss OLIVE LOGAN, who was for many years an actress, and was quite as popular and successful as her merits entitled her to be, used some strange language about the lady members of the theatrical profession in her speech before the Equal Rights Association the other night. After telling that she herself had quit the profession, she said that she "would not advise any woman to go upon the stage; for the demoralizing influences there prevalent are daily increasing, and its prizes are won by brazen-faced, yellow-haired, padded-legged creatures, while well-qualified and decent actresses cannot earn a living." Now, had Miss LOGAN herself been a total failure as an actress, we could easily understand these sharp and bitter words. But in her language in accordance with justice, and is it only such women as she describes that win the dramatic prizes? Within a short time we have had here RISTORI, JANAUSCHEK and LANDER—al of whom won pecuniary success; and in a short time we will have Miss RAVENAH, who will unquestionably renew her former triumphs. Does the success of actresses like these depend on such accessories as Miss LOGAN sharpens her wits upon? We could mention a dozen other names of the day only less popular and prominent than these, whose success is, in like manner, the result of genuine ability in the rôle of tragedy or comedy. Though some of the leg-dramatists and one-one performers here created a temporary furore, it is not the "fair thing" to overlook the cases, no less numerous, in which honorable popularity and large rewards have been won by players who illustrated the higher features of dramatic art, and would have scorned to appeal to anything base or immoral. Even though Miss LOGAN has left the stage herself, she should not slander those who may still follow the profession.

We are assured on competent authority that there was an error in one point in the reference made in the TIMES the other day to the "Coroner's ring." It was said that certain members of the ring, daily examined, among other documents, the "certificate book in the proper department for issuing certificates of burial." It appears that burial permits are now only issued from the Bureau of Vital Statistics; and the permit-book has never been examined for the purpose mentioned by any member of the "Coroner's ring," nor for any other purpose, save by the attachés of the Bureau, since the duty of granting burial permits was conferred upon the Metropolitan Board of Health. Our informant says, however, that he knows nothing of the use made of the burial permit-books prior to the time they came under the control of the Board of Health.

DON PIATT, of Cincinnati, has been enjoying a ride behind Dexter with his owner, Mr. ROBERT BONNER, the distinguished editor of the Ledger. Of course he prints an account of the conversation, which was of course about General GRANT:

"I wish," said Mr. PIATT to Mr. BONNER, according to PIATT's account of the colloquy, "I wish you had given GRANT some advice. I felt better when I saw him associated with you and GEORGE WILKES. I regard WILKES as one of the most remarkable men of the day."

"So do I," said BONNER, earnestly. "He writes with wonderful power and clearness. When you want to try a man's capacity put a pen in his hand. But I doubt whether GRANT advised with WILKES; he certainly did not with me."

"Talked 'hoss' mostly, did he not?"

"Well, yes," &c., &c.

We must confess that the more of these reports of the private conversations of private gentlemen we see in the newspapers, the less do we perceive the propriety of their being printed. Why should all the confidences of life be violated, and all the private remarks of everybody about their friends be published?

Not only has VALMASEDA's barbarous order been shown to be genuine, but its terms are executed upon the Cubans in a style worthy of ALVA, the infamous Spanish butcher of the Netherlands. The extract which our Havana correspondent sent yesterday from an official report of one of VALMASEDA's subordinates about the taking of prisoners, shows one of the measures now put in force to lessen the number of the revolutionists. Says the report:

"All the prisoners manifested their repentance (for having joined the revolution,) and promised to be in future not only sustainers of order, but also would use their influence to make their friends and relatives do the same; they had merited death, however, and naturally I had them executed."

Surely the Liberal authorities at Madrid cannot be aware of the means of carrying on war adopted in Cuba by the Captain-General. Of the accounts come from the revolutionary side, we might discredit them; but the Spanish commanders narrate their own barbarous atrocities, (including the butchery of prisoners,) with the most perfect unconcern.

In the case of Widow CUFF against the Newark and New-York Railroad Company, the evidence, given in the Hudson County Supreme Court, shows with what desperate recklessness the nitro-glycerine explosion at Bergen, in 1867, was brought about. BURNS, the man in charge of the oil, was drunk and drowsy. Wishing to melt the glycerine, he dipped the can into a vessel of water, and then put a red-hot poker into the water. When he found this had no effect, he took an iron spike and hammered it into one of the cans to break up the frozen mass! Then came the explosion, at last. With proper care nitro-glycerine is as safe as gunpowder, though greatly more powerful.

Rev. Dr. MORTON, at the Tract Society, and WENDELL PHILLIPS, at the Anti-Slavery Society, have expressed opinions that the Chinese may yet give us some trouble. Mr. PHILLIPS believes we shall be as terribly worried about giving them the suffrage in some years, as we are now in giving it to the negroes; and the doctor, in view of their mighty population and general intelligence, evidently fears we may be absorbed, and so come to adopt Fo with chopsticks and other fashions to correspond. It is an unpleasant lookout, certainly. But we shall greatly rely on the efforts of the Tract Society to save us from being celestialized in that way, and keeping things generally on the old footing in this country.

The strangest news of all is from that steady old Russia, where, it is said, the Pontifical metropolis of Moscow is thinking, in some measure, of becoming the head of a Sclavonic Republic, with Warsaw, Wilna and Kiew as its federal faubourgs and capitals. An extensive conspiracy of Sclavons exists, they say, which seems odd enough, when we consider that these Sclavons were always looking to the Czar as their Head Centre and friend. A real movement of that sort would make Russia a much less formidable Power than she seems on the map, and would not greatly grieve the "Western Alliance."

Millions of Americans are in apprehension lest the work of destruction should extend to the Vuelta Abajo region, in the western part of the island of Cuba. There it is that is grown the fragrant leaf that goes to the making of those fascinating cigars known as the Españolas, the Purezas, and so forth. In no part of the world is such tobacco produced as in the region referred to, and millions of able-bodied men would be reduced almost to despair by the deprivation of it for a single week. Let the Spaniards and the revolutionists, therefore, be entreated to do their fighting and burning in the sugar region, or the coffee region, or the cotton region—among the oranges, the pine apples, cocoanuts and bananas—but spare, O spare, the Vuelta Abajo!

Custom-House Affairs.

The pressure upon Mr. GRINNELL for appointments in the Collector's Department still continues, but the crowds which gather in the ante-room and hallways have ceased to be so observable. It appears that no less than 11,000 applications, with the usual indorsements, have been handed in and their contents noted, though not always acted upon. In justice to Mr. GRINNELL, however, we must add that no Collector of this or any other port ever gave more patient attention to more persistent applicants. The New-York Custom-house has come to be considered a hospital for wearable office-seekers in all par

CONTINENTAL SUMMARY.

The French Elections—The Candidates and their Chances—Rallery and Caricature—The Leris Legislature—Bismarck's Blue Books.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Friday, April 30, 1869.

All other political topics are absorbed in the interest excited by the approaching elections. Their importance cannot be exaggerated, for on them depends the progress of Parliamentary Government, and the emancipation of the country from the tyranny of a majority which is at once insolent and servile, a check upon the good intentions of the Emperor and the docile instrument of his follies.

The evils which have flowed from this state of things, and the dangers to which its continuance may lead, have awakened people to the necessity of returning to the Legislature such a proportion of honest and capable men as will form a middle term between the unreasoning imperialism of the majority and the fierce radicalism of the Republican minority. There are plenty of statesmen of this calibre—the débris of the old political parties—who will willingly consent to occupy this position. They see in it the only chance of safety for the country, and they are accordingly offering themselves unreservedly as candidates in the approaching electoral struggle. You must no doubt have detected the first evidences of this movement in the fierce opposition raised against the candidature of EMILE OLIVIER and ADOLPHE GUERROULT by the Siècle. The Republicans dread the formation of what EMILE DE GIRARDIN styles the "Constitutional," in contradistinction to the "Revolutionary Opposition." If the Constitutionalists are returned in any strength to the Corps Legislatif, they will at once absorb or at all events neutralize the Republican minority. You may readily imagine that after all their struggles and sacrifices, the latter are anything but pleased at this prospect. The Republican theory has only vitality here, in presence of the negation of Parliamentary control. That once obtained, there will be an end to the influence of the small but talented body which has so valiantly maintained the struggle against the despotic tendencies of the Empire, and which has forced the chief of the State in the interest of his dynasty to renounce pretensions incompatible with the welfare and prosperity of the country.

I have been at some pains to ascertain to what extent the movement thus originated can calculate upon realizing its hopes. From all the indications that I can gather, as well from the local journals as from the statements of its promoters, I am led to believe that there will be returned to the next Chamber a compact and well-disciplined tiers parti, or constitutional opposition, which will support the Government in all just and proper measures, and as firmly oppose it on all those which are opposed to the welfare of the country. In conversation with the editor of one of the semi-ministerial journals yesterday, he admitted to me that this estimate was not far from the correct figure, and that he believed the Emperor would be glad to be relieved from the enormous weight of responsibility which the present anomalous state of things entails upon him. He was neither free to follow the dictates of his own will, nor yet to check the reactionary tendencies of the majority. In short, he enjoyed all the odium attaching to the so-called system of personal government, without possessing any of its substantial advantages.

To show you how this conflict of opposite tendencies is weakening the Administration, I must relate to you some facts which have just transpired in connection with the approaching electoral struggle in the Department de l'Ain. M. GERMAIN, son-in-law of M. VUITRY, President of the Council of State, offered himself in opposition to the late Deputy, M. BODIN, who is also the official candidate. M. VUITRY begged of the Minister of the Interior to observe impartiality in this circumscription, but M. DE FORCADE LA ROQUETTE refused, and the President of the Council of State has, it appears, decided to repair in person to the spot and aid the election of his son-in-law by every means in his power. This, you will admit, is a state of things which can only end in placing the Government at the mercy of its opponents. It is the inevitable result of Ministerial interference at the polls, which first demonstrates the inconsistency of the personal system of government with universal suffrage, and then demonstrates its powerlessness to control the refractory tendencies which exist among its own subordinates.

In regard to the Paris elections, I can only give you a few details, as doubt still exists regarding the intentions of some of the candidates announced. In the First Circumscription there are three candidates, namely, M. CARNOT, the late Deputy, M. GAMBETTA, whose acceptance has not as yet been published, and M. HENRY, a mechanic and ex-President of the Workmen's Delegation at the Exhibition of 1867. M. HENRY is a man of marked ability, a fair speaker, and his claims are advocated by the popular organ, Le Vrai du Peuple. In the Second Circumscription the candidates are M. THIERS, the late Deputy, Count D'ALTON SHEE and M. ANDRÉ ROUSSELLE, a lawyer. M. D'ALTON SHEE has addressed to the electors a profession of faith, in which he explains the motives which have decided him to present himself against M. THIERS. The Sémaphore, of Marseilles, also announces that M. THIERS has accepted the candidature in the First Circumscription of the Bouches du Rhone in opposition to M. FERDINAND DU LESSEPS, who is on his way back from Egypt to contest the election. You will remember that M. DE LESSEPS had refused the nomination on account of his necessary absence from Paris in attending to the affairs of the Suez Canal; but the electors have forced it upon him, saying that the important services which he was rendering there gave him additional claims to their gratitude. In the Third (Paris) Circumscription the candidates are MM. EMILE OLIVIER BANCEL and DURIER. M. OLIVIER is also running in the Department of the Var, where he is to be opposed by M. CLEMENT LAURIER, the eminent criminal lawyer, who is supported by the Democratic opposition. M. BANCEL, M. OLIVIER's opponent in Paris, was formerly a representative of the people in the Constituent Assembly, and was exiled after the coup d'état of the 2d of December. He will run M. OLIVIER closely, and may possibly defeat him. M. ULYSSE PARENT was spoken of as a candidate for the Fourth (Paris) Circumscription in opposition to M. FIGARD, the late Deputy, but I see this morning that he has abandoned the idea, if he ever seriously entertained it, of running against him. In the Fifth Circumscription the candidates are M. GARNIER PAGES, late Deputy; M. F. V. RASPAIL, formerly Representative of the people, and M. GEORGE BAUDIN, the candidate of the Revel newspaper. An effort is to be made in the Sixth Circumscription, by the Republicans, to oust M. GUERROULT, the able editor of the Opinion Nationale, who represented it in the late Legislature, but I do not think it will be successful. The opposing candidates are MM. HENRI BERGSON and JULES FERRY. In the Seventh Circumscription JULES FAVRE is announced as a candidate against M. DARIMON, the late Deputy. An offer was also made to M. GAMBETTA to put him in nomination, but I have not heard whether he has accepted it. Several other candidates for this circumscription are spoken of, among the rest HENRI DE ROCHEFORT. The effect of his election would be to enable him to return to Paris, unless the Assembly decided by a special vote not to receive him, which it would hardly do. M. JULES SIMON has no Democratic opponent in the Eighth Circumscription. His only competitor is M. LAIGNARD. In the Ninth Circumscription, EUGENE PELLETAN, the late Deputy, is to be opposed by M. BOULEY, a Government functionary.

CORRUPTION AT THE ELECTIONS.

The provincial journal Le Glonde recently asserted that in the department of that name the votes of several thousand electors had been recently bought up at twenty-five cents apiece by one of the candidates. It has just been privately stated to me that the name of this candidate is the Commandant LAMEY, Aid-de-camp or officier d'ordonnance to the Prince Imperial, and who has lately been elected a member of the Conseil General of this Department. None of the journals of course dare to publish the fact.

THE LATE LEGISLATURE.

The Corps Legislatif, which has just finished its labors of its existence, was dissolved on the Lever on the 16th of January, and in the Palais Bourbon on the following day. It had lasted three months and nine days, or, without a day's difference, five months less than the Session of 1868, and two months less than each of the sessions of 1866 and 1867. The number of Deputies, which was 261 in 1863, 267 in 1866, and 273 in 1867, will, by the annexation to France of Nice and Savoy, become 290 in the next Legislature. Four new departments have one Deputy more, and two one Deputy less, than formerly. These latter are the Seine and the Var.

THE BELGIAN DIFFICULTY.

It would appear from the most official journals that the French Government has concluded to abandon its first pretensions in the affair of the Belgian railways. It relinquishes the ratification of the treaties concluded between the Eastern and Luxembourg lines, and confines itself to demanding a reduction of the Belgian tariffs, and the organization of an international service under certain conditions. These conditions appear to me to be still rather despotic, but as they modify greatly the impudence of the first demands, it is probable they will be agreed to.

BISMARCK'S BLUE BOOKS.

The Prussian Chancellor's recent declaration that he would publish no more Blue Books, because they only served to deceive people, is infinitely relished here where the art of evoking public returns is practiced in perfection. Whatever may be thought of BISMARCK'S policy, it cannot be denied that it is outspoken and honest. It would be better for the peace of the world if other Ministers and diplomatists were to follow his example.

Musical.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The Academy was last evening reopened for the production of WM. VINCENT WALLACE'S "Lurline," an opera which, although written in this City many years ago, has hitherto been known here only by occasional concert selections, and the drawing-room circulation of most of its fluent and graceful melodies. The audience was tolerably large, in spite of the discouraging weather, and showed the smallest disposition to receive the work with cordiality, but the brilliancy of the representation was not sufficient to inspire any decided demonstrations of enthusiasm until toward the close, when a few hearty and fairly merited encores were bestowed upon the principal artists. The orchestra was good throughout, and the chorus not so remiss as to impair the general effect; but the performances of the ladies and gentlemen to whom the leading characters were assigned, was not calculated to afford the best evidence of the merit of the opera. The music is not very exacting, yet it appeared, at least on this occasion, to overtask the powers of almost everybody concerned. When the difficulties of the first night shall have been smoothed away, we may look for a more thorough and adequate interpretation, and, consequently, for a more liberal display of popular appreciation.

As the most ambitious and successful work of a composer whose musical career was chiefly passed among us, "Lurline" must always be regarded with interest by Americans. It was the main artistic object of WALLACE'S life, and the labor which he devoted to it for at least half a score of years, as well as the jealous care with which he withheld it from the public until the opportunity arrived for presenting it with all the advantages of the first opera house of London, showed how high a place it held in his own estimation. It was commenced, we believe, about the year 1848, and was not completed until 1860, when it was brought out at Covent Garden by the Pyne and Harrison Company, and was at once welcomed with universal applause and admiration. Notwithstanding an amiable disposition on the part of English critics to represent its merits in the most favorable light, and to conceal its weaknesses, the judgment then passed has been generally accepted by musicians, and is not likely ever to be materially changed. The brilliancy, the romantic fervor, the wealth of melody and fine harmonious coloring that distinguish it almost from beginning to end, have certainly never been excelled, and probably never rivalled, in combination, by any of the modern English composers. The instrumentation shows the hand of a master. The concerted pieces, also, exhibit greater scientific skill and far more elaborate finish than we are accustomed to look for among writers of this class. The manner of their treatment, however, is seldom original, and is at times altogether too strongly suggestive of Italian models—witness the stirring finale to the second act. This, and an undue preponderance of the sentimental ballad style of phrasing, to which all English composers, for obvious reasons, are inordinately addicted, are the only serious faults of "Lurline," and these are abundantly atoned for by its many charms. Every one must regret the choice of the libretto, which is a clumsy caricature of a familiar legend of the Rhine, and which is not only an offence to literature, but even endangers by its awkwardness and harshness some of the best musical effects attempted by the composer. WALLACE was undoubtedly captivated by the subject, than which none could be more attractive to a musician of his nature, and overlooked the uncouthness of the means by which he was enabled to reach his end.

The performance last evening, as we have said, was not of the first order. Mr. BOWLER and Signor ORLANDINI sang more carefully and earnestly than their associates, most of whom were afflicted with a singular and unwarrantable apathy. Nothing could have surpassed the frigid indifference of Miss MCCULLOCH'S demeanor, or the easy nonchalance of Mrs. BOWLER. Mr. HALL, at least, exerted himself to satisfy the audience, and all that can be said of Signor LORINI is, that he judiciously withheld the peculiar impetuosity which, however well intended, is apt to interfere with the seriousness of any occasion in which he participates. The scenery was new and bright, and was quite as much admired as if it had been strictly appropriate. A "transformation," at the close, signifying nothing in particular, was dazzingly brilliant. Mlle. BONFANTI appeared with an indifferent troupe of dancing girls, and lengthened, without especially animating, a couple of scenes.

The Italian version of "Lurline" will be given to-night, with an entirely different cast.

Theatrical.

BURLESQUE AT THE WAVERLEY.

The company at the Waverley is certainly seen to better advantage in comedietta and farce than in modern burlesque. Plays of the latter order call for a display of scenery, costume and living beauties, quite beyond the reach of the management of so small a house, and as a consequence, such productions as "Pygmalion," enacted last evening, fall of much of their effect. In quality, the new piece, that will not have a very long run, differs little from the articles with which the theatrical market has already been too liberally supplied. It rests upon the familiar tale in which the love of the sculptor, Pygmalion, for the statue himself has fashioned, is told, and it introduces besides these characters, numerous deputations from Olympus, where, it would seem, powdered hair, latter-day necklaces and diamond rings are not wholly disregarded. Pygmalion is represented by Miss MINNIE JACKSON, who was part of the company that gathered around Miss ELISE HOLZ, a burlesque artist the Waverley misses. The statue is embodied by Miss JENNY WILLMORE. Miss WILLMORE is by far the most agreeable and talented of the troupe. She is small, pretty, animated, and can recite the lines assigned to her so that the few witticisms they contain are not passed by entirely unheeded. In this respect, as we need hardly inform the frequenters of those places where the rule of the blondes still endures, she differs from nine-tenths of her associates in the same line of dramatic business, and also from her sister, Miss LESLIE WILLMORE, who would do well to make search for the naturalness she once possessed, and from the Misses FITZ, whose fresh voices and good looks scarcely atone for their ingrigrigo. Mr. FELIX BOGNER, a new comer, plays Gamboge, the sculptor's apprentice. Judging from his acting in "Pygmalion," he is a low comedian who, in his struggle for popularity, relies more upon epileptic action, facial distortion and absurd changes of voice than upon genuine humor. A very amusing, if rather coarse, delineation of the Princess Meadows, by Mr. EDELVI RYAN, elicited the most hearty merriment that was heard last evening. Mr. C. T. PARSLOE, Jr., and Mr. JAMES BURN were in the cast with the actors who have had special mention, but had little to do. The entertainment, which included besides the burlesque the farce of "Ici on parle Français," is to be repeated this and to-morrow evening, and at the regular Saturday matinée.

BRYANTS' MINSTRELS.

Bryants' Minstrels, fresh from a profitable sojourn elsewhere, resumed possession of their Fourteenth-street house on Monday evening last. Their members, include Mr. DAN BRYANT, Mr. UNSWORTH, Mr. BUCKLEY and Mr. HELEN SEYMOUR—that is to say, a quartet of great favorites—and the strength of the company has been increased by the accession of Mr. DAVID REED, a comedian of renown in the world of minstrelsy. The entertainment in which the troupe collaprate, calls for no detailed notice. We cannot look for positive novelty in Ethiopian representations, and from the size of the audience that filled the place on Monday, and from its delight, the public, whose views most men respect more than those of any one else, does not share it. One feature at the Fourteenth-street Opera House, however, is quite new. Its advantages, in fact, can be tested ere one enters the theater at all. The prices of admission have been reduced, and reserved seats have been done away with. Which of our City theatres is possessed of a manager just and shrewd enough to follow the example these less pretentious minstrels have set?

PRINCETON COLLEGE.

The Class of 1869—Farewells and Good Wishes—Address of President McCosh.

The ancient, time-honored pile, Princeton College, rang with cheering sounds of laughter, echoed many a College song and heard the sad notes of many a fervent farewell yesterday. It was the Class Day, and the relatives and friends of the Seniors gathered in the chapel to listen to poem, song and oration by the "Class of '69," who were about to leave the quiet scenes and dreams of Alma Mater for the busy realities of the world. The weather was dull and rainy best part of the day, which somewhat marred the festivities, and perhaps added a touch of sadness to the leave-takings.

The chapel was filled early in the day, and while Grafulla's Band, stationed in the gallery, played a march from "Le Prophète," the class of '69 filed into the chapel. The following are the names of the graduating class:

CLASS OF '69—J. W. Aitken, C. T. Anderson, F. B. Baldwin, H. Bergner, B. R. Black, J. T. Brakeley, J. R. Breckinridge, A. Chapman, N. R. C. Cumings, C. D. Cruse, C. M. Dee Lisle, W. H. Eby, N. S. Fewing, Jas. T. Finley, F. Fowler, J. E. Fox, William C. Freeman, J. G. A. Fullerton, J. F. Hageman, C. Hazlehurst, G. H. Hope, L. H. Howell, W. Hunt, Jas. T. Irvine, T. J. Jones, H. O. Kanehy, W. S. Lakin, W. S. Little, H. A. Lloyd, J. N. Logan, Wm. H. McGee, Wm. McKibbin, K. D. Mellier, J. H. Mills, W. H. Park, G. T. Porter, J. C. Rose, C. D. Ridgway, E. W. H. Rhoads, J. Schenck, J. G. Schenck, C. W. Sloan, A. Speer, N. F. Stahl, W. S. Stites, W. L. Swan, H. C. Talmadge, A. O. Tiffany, R. S. Tomlyns, W. B. Waller, G. K. Ward, R. B. Wheaton, E. F. Wells, G. C. Young.

CHARLES DALLAS RIDGWAY, one of the class, presided.

The Class Poem was delivered by CHARLES DODD CRANE of New-Jersey. It was gracefully recited, and was very enthusiastically received by the audience.

The Oration by J. QUINCY A. FULLERTON, of Kentucky, was also well received.

The Class Ode, composed by GEORGE KEMP WARD, of New-York, was then sung:

* * * * * * *

Farewell Classmates! Comrades, Brothers—
Faithful friends tried true!
We, who've learned to love each other,
Now must learn to bid adieu!
Clasp each hand in love fraternal,
Every heart and voice prepare
While we pay our last fond tribute
To our own dear Sixty-nine!

President McCOSH arose amid great applause, and advancing, said this was the first Class Day he had ever attended in America. It brought back recollections of his own college days, and though it would not bring back youthful spirits, still it was pleasant to think of the days that have long passed away. This was the scholars' day; he would not interfere with their enjoyment. He had his day some six months ago. (Laughter.) He would lay aside the gown, with its honors and cares, and even partake of and enjoy their fun. They were going away from him, out into the busy world. Their teachers would ever think of them, and would forgive almost anything they might do except forget. They must not forget their teachers and tutors. The President then invoked the Divine blessing upon the class, and offered a fervent prayer for their future welfare and happiness.

After the hymn, "Come, Christian brothers, ere we part," by the class, the benediction was pronounced by President McCOSH.

It had been intended that the remaining exercises of the day should have followed in regular order, but owing to the storm that was raging without it was deemed advisable to proceed with the "cannon exercises," which were to have taken place on the "Campus," (the green of the College.)

The other exercises were as follows:

LIBRARY EXERCISES.

Music, "Barbe Bleue".....Offenbach.
Library Oration.....Wm. McKibbin, Pennsylvania.
Sixteen volumes of the American Encyclopedia were presented to Professor CAMERON for the library.
Music, Galop, "Ida".....Faust.

IVY EXERCISES.

Song, "Lauriger Horatius".....by the class.
Ivy Oration.....Jas. Nath't Irwin, Pennsylvania.
Music, "La Grand Duchesse".....Offenbach.

There was to have been a grand promenade concert in the evening, but the drizzling rain interfered with this arrangement.

The following is a record of the Princeton College Base Ball Club:

CONGREGATIONAL UNION.

Sixteenth Annual Reunion of the American Congregational Union.

The Sixteenth annual meeting of the American Congregational Union was held in the director's room of the Brooklyn Academy of Music yesterday afternoon, Mr. A. S. BARNES, Vice-President, in the chair.

It was resolved to recommend the churches to make an effort to double the amount of the receipts of last year during 1869 and 1870, for the purpose of aiding the large number of weak churches in all parts of the country.

From an abstract of the Treasurer's report it appears that—

The available funds for the year ending May 11, 1869, including receipts from contributions for the year and balance from last year, were.....$42,626 75
To this there is to be added a legacy of.....10,000 00
Total.....$52,626 75
The disbursements for the year have been:
For appropriations paid toward the erection of Congregational houses of worship.....$27,626 00
For salaries, rents, reports, circulars, postage, &c.....9,721 46
Appropriations pledged to 31 churches, payable on the completion of their houses of worship.....12,200 00— $50,027 46

Nearly all the old officers were reelected. Rev. Dr. LEONARD BACON, of New-Haven, continuing President.

THE REUNION.

In the evening the annual social reunion was held in the Academy, Rev. R. S. STORRS, Jr., D.D., presiding. Rev. Mr. COBBINS, of Boston, offered the opening prayer.

Rev. RAY PALMER, D. D., of Albany, made a statement of the general work of the Union during the past year. He said that it was not too much to say that the marriage of two oceans, consummated a few days ago, was one of the results of the indomitable energy which was brought here by the Pilgrim Fathers; we were but in the midst of the harvest of the work done by the fathers who landed on Plymouth Rock. The spirit of liberty born there had not died, but wasselive, and was working out the problem of freedom both in this land and in other lands.

Rev. Dr. BUDDINGTON responded by DOBOWETH's hand and a voluntary chair, constituted of gentlemen from the choirs of many of the churches in Brooklyn and New-York. The singing was, of course, in excellent taste and masterly volume, under the conduct of Mr. HENRY DAME, chorister of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn.

Rev. Dr. STORRS, in making his introductory remarks, observed that so far they had had a good time—good music from gentlemen who had come from near and far, of their own free will, to give us glorious music. [Applause.] He referred to the pre-historic times in which annual meetings were held at the old Tabernacle in Broadway, New-York, when and where people used to meet in conflict—when the meeting of the Tract Society used to summon combatants to the onset, and said that only at the meetings of the Congregational Union was to be found harmony. It was because of this harmony that they had come over to Brooklyn. People always came to Brooklyn when they were harmonious and agreeable. CHARLES TAINE sang and the story of two women who quarreled from opposite sides of a street in London, and said that they were arguing from opposite premises, but the Congregational Reunion had no premises; its platform was free and unhampered, and the representatives of other denominations were welcomed to it to unfold in short speeches what God had been doing for their respective Christian bodies. Alluding to the finishing of the new railroad now spanning the continent, it was important that more money should be raised to enable the Union to throw churches along the Pacific Railroad and so light up the valley, and erect the shrine of holiness to the Lord on the mountain sides; instead of $50,000, the sum of $100,000 should be raised. He then introduced

Rev. STANLEY H. TYNG, Jr., in a few happy words. Mr. TYNG was delighted that Congregational liberty was limited to ten minutes; after that he supposed it was license. His epicacy was very near to the Church of the Pilgrims, although he claimed to belong to the Church of the Puritans. He was a Puritan of the Puritans. The Puritans left home and made progress; the Pilgrims remained and created. He then proceeded to speak in adulatory terms of the catholic spirit in which the Congregational Union was conceived—the spirit that preached Jesus and the resurrection. There they stood, fancing in all who loved the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity; keeping out only those who were exclusive, and drawing to them all of like spirit with themselves, no man excluded so long as he preached, or heard Christ preached, in any way, with a liturgy or without liturgy, or half and half. (Laughter.) They were one, and only sought to clean out all that tends toward Romanism.

Rev. T. DEWITT TALMADGE was the next speaker. He said he was glad to see Dr. STORRS in the chair, and he hoped that it would be long before that church in Boston got him away from Brooklyn. He was sure that if that audience were to vote they would unanimously call him to stay here. He had come to the conclusion that the Congregational Union was the best thing in Heaven above, on the earth beneath, or in the waters under the earth. Such a mixture as was on the platform was worth consideration. The speaker satirized the style of conducting anniversaries in New-York, and said that the secret of their failure was best revealed by the secret of the success of the Congregational Union. It did a turtle good now and then to stick its head out of its shell—it enlarges its ideas of things, and is complimentary to other turtles. He loved that Union, because during the dark days of the war it always stood erect for Union, Liberty and Human Rights.

Rev. ROBERT LOWERY was lost in calculation with a view to finding out why he was there. He could only account for the presence there on the ground of a loose screw somewhere. There was, however, a fitness in the meeting of Baptists and Congregationalists. Baptists were Congregationalists, only a little more so. They had suffered together in days past, and there was no reason why they should not sit down together and love each other. It had been claimed that the Pacific Railroad started from Plymouth Rock, but he held that the Revolution, the Declaration of Independence, the Emancipation Proclamation, the Fifteenth Amendment and the Pacific Railroad all started from ROGER WILLIAMS, a man who had done more, by far, than they who had sent him forth.

Rev. Dr. PRIME, of Wales, was next introduced. He congratulated the Union upon the great work it had done in this country. He then gave his first impressions of New-York—especially as to distances as viewed from the standpoint of Trinity Church steeple. He had come hither for the purpose of adding to the information of the Union, which he expected to find in the region of Boston. He urged upon the meeting the importance of the Union continuing and increasing its work of planting churches and aiding weak ones to become self-supporting. If they could see the emigrants crowding along the English railroads making their way toward the background of America, they would see the importance of providing churches where they were going. The speaker alluded in eloquent terms to the struggles and triumphs being made in England and Europe for civil and religious liberty. The battle of Church and State was being fought, and in Ireland an effort was being made to unshackle religion. He wished he could make himself understood in telling of the sentiment of the Welsh people in favor of America. During the recent war the Welsh people had stood by America in the days when its mettle was put to the test—all its people, its newspapers, its magazines, its little papers, all were warm in sympathy with the American cause. He quoted a list of the prominent citizens and statesmen of the past who, he claimed, were born in Wales; among them were ROGER WILLIAMS, WILLIAM PENN and a host of others, and there were now not less than an hundred thousand hardy, useful Welsh miners in Pennsylvania, and Ohio—men who will never be burdensome to the State or community, only asking that they may have a fair day's work and a fair day's wages for it. He then said that he was here in company with Rev. R. M. HUNTY, of Tuam, Ireland, on a mission in behalf of the Church in that country.

Rev. NORMAN SEAVER, D.D., of the First Presbyterian Church, was the last speaker.

Rev. Dr. BUDDINGTON pronounced the benediction, and the proceedings thus terminated.

FEARFUL TRAGEDY.

Attempt to Murder a Young Lady in Brooklyn—Suicide of the Assailant.

Brooklyn Heights was at an early hour yesterday morning the scene of extraordinary excitement, caused by a tragedy the details of which are sufficient to gratify the most eager lovers of horrible sensations. Mr. SAMUEL D. TALBOT, a dry goods commission merchant, doing business in New-York, and residing in the house of Mr. BENJAMIN FLINT, No. 1 Montague-terrace, a short distance from the Wall-street Ferry landing, on the Brooklyn side, attempted to take the life of Miss LIZZIE SCRIBNER by shooting her with a pistol, and, finding himself promptly surrounded by members of the family, rushed to his room and shot himself in the head, dying instantly.

It appears that for a long time past the deceased had paid special attention to Miss SCRIBNER, but against her wishes. Latterly he proposed marriage to her, and she declined. On Wednesday night he went home at a late hour, and, it would appear, immediately proceeded to prepare himself for the commission of some unlawful act, in attempting to consummate which he was evidently foiled. He entered the sleeping chamber of Miss SCRIBNER after she had retired, and approaching her bed-side, laid a towel over her face, the towel having been profusely saturated with sulphate of morphine. At the instant, the strange intrusion awakened Miss SCRIBNER, and her screams alarmed the whole household. In a moment or two the family were gathered in the immediate vicinity of the chamber alluded to just in time to hear two pistol shots in quick succession, which TALBOT had fired at Miss SCRIBNER, the first glancing the side of her head, and the second taking one of her finger joints and lodging in the left arm. The young lady became unconscious, and TALBOT, hearing the footsteps on the stairs, rushed to his own room and enclosed himself in bed. Mr. and Mrs. FLINT removed the young lady down stairs to their own room, then went up to the apartment occupied by TALBOT, and informed him of what had occurred, also, stating that as they traced the smell of camphor to his room, they thought it must have come from there to Miss SCRIBNER'S. He requested them to retire until he dressed himself. This request was respected, and in a few moments two more pistol shots were heard. TALBOT had blown his own brains out, and so placed himself beyond the reach of the law, and the contempt of his fellow men. Miss SCRIBNER is only about 20 years of age, and at the time of this tragic operation was merely a visitor with Mrs. FLINT, her sister. TALBOT was 27 years of age, and was considered a young man of unpretending manners and of blameless reputation.

At an early hour, Coroner JONES, who had been promptly notified by the Police telegraph, attended upon the scene and held an inquest, at which the following testimony was elicited:

Lizzie Scribner testified as follows: I was aroused from my sleep about one o'clock by hearing a slight noise, like the creaking of a door; immediately I felt a towel saturated with chloroform on my face; I was stifled, and exerting my strength I forced myself from the application; the towel was burning in my room; I recognized the person who was in my room, and who applied the chloroform to my face; it was Samuel D. Talbot, the deceased; I was somewhat stupefied, but was sufficiently conscious to be able to spring from my bed, reach the head of the stairs and call my sister, who soon came to my assistance and directed me to go to her rooms; I did so, and being faint from excitement, I myself put her bed in the back room; I had lain there but a few minutes before Talbot came from the passage way, between the rooms, into the room where I was lying; my face was turned the front of the house, and he came through from the front; as he entered the room, I turned my face around to see who it was; when I saw it was Talbot, I sprang from the bed to the opposite side of the bed from him and crowded down in front of the windows; while I was doing so he leveled and fired a pistol at me; the ball struck me on the cheek bone, just at the angle of the eye, inflicting a slight wound; I threw up both of my hands to my head, and as I did so he changed his position from the side to the foot of the bed; this brought him within a few feet of me, when he fired three, the ball striking my hand, passing through my third finger and the middle of my hand and into the breastpin, resting out upon the opposite to which it had entered; he then left the room; I cannot imagine why Mr. Talbot should have thus attempted to take my life; my relations and associations with him have been of a friendly character, but not intimate; I had to struggle very hard to free myself from the towel, which was in the hands of Mr. Talbot.

Rev. Mr. Flint testified as follows: I reside at No. 1 Montague-terrace; I was aroused about one A. M. to-day by hearing Miss Scribner screaming in her room; my wife and I went to her room; she was lying with her brought her down to my room; she was very much excited and frightened; she had a cloth wet with chloroform had been placed over her face while she was asleep; I went into her room; I thinking that burglars had got into the house, I ran up stairs to search for them; Miss Scribner's room had the odor of chloroform in it very strongly; also Talbot's; his was the strongest; while up stairs I heard a pistol shot twice, and thought it was on the sidewalk; as I was coming down stairs I met Talbot coming hurriedly up; he spoke to me and said "What's the matter?" he neither stopped nor looked around; I did not see Talbot after; nor did I observe any pistol in his hand; he was in his bed when I first came up, and I put my hand on him; he pretended to be asleep; when I returned, he was gone; Jesse Scribner further said to me, saying, "Oh! do you think I am killed?" her dress was lost on me and covered with blood; I saw that she was wounded in the face and arm; shortly after I heard another shot; I opened the hall door and admitted the Police, who went up to Talbot's room and found that he had shot himself; Talbot's apparel

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Yesterday Messrs. A. D. MELLICK, JR., & BRO. had their great sale of villa plots, located at Roselle, N. J. The arrangements were in every way excellent. Promptly at the time advertised the train moved off. A goodly number of very respectable persons were on board. The train proceeded quickly, and without unnecessary stops, to the place of sale, and the crowd left it, fresh and in excellent humor. A liberal lunch was provided, and everything done that could be expected to make the guests comfortable. After the visitors had partaken to their entire satisfaction of the solids and fluids, which were not only plentiful, but also served up in unexceptionable style, the sale commenced.

The auctioneer, Mr. O. H. PIERSON, at once engaged the attention of his entire audience. Familiar with his duties, quick witted and thoroughly in earnest, he at the start created a good impression, gained the good-will of all, and kept them interested to the close. The prices obtained were very fair, not quite so large as have been obtained, but yet, satisfactory. It frequently happens that a sale commences a little dull, but gains as it advances. This unquestionably would have been the case in this instance, but just as the people were becoming fairly interested, and the auctioneer well warmed up to his work, a shower commenced, which soon changed to a regular old-fashioned rain-storm. The audience were, as is natural, more anxious to keep dry than to buy lots, and the sale was necessarily adjourned. Great credit is due to Messrs. MELLICK & BRO. for their management of the whole affair. From beginning to end it worked smoothly and harmoniously, and, had it not been for the storm, their efforts would, it is fair to believe, have been crowned with entire success. As it is, they were successful so far as the sale was allowed to proceed, and the people quitted the ground well pleased and satisfied with their trip.

To-day Messrs. E. H. LUDLOW & Co. will continue their sale of the Willink estate. The property is well located, quite valuable, and should be well attended.

On Monday Messrs. JOHNSON & MILLER have their grand sale of 500 lots located at Woodhaven, L. I. The property is delightfully located, and joins the Union Race-course, is but one mile beyond East New-York, and is on Atlantic-avenue, which is 120 feet wide. It is in the rear of the extensive manufactory of Messrs. LALANCE & GROJEAN, and has frequent communication with this City by steam and horse cars. The sale is to be absolute, an excellent lunch will be provided, and from the well-known character of the gentlemen who have the affair in charge, a pleasant day may be expected. Maps and free tickets may be had at the office of the auctioneers, No. 25 Nassau-street.

On Tuesday a handsome cottage house and six lots of ground, each 50 by 150, will be sold at Menlo Park, N. J. This is one of the most pleasant points on the line of the New-Jersey Railroad; the ground is high, the soil fertile, the air fresh and pure and cool, even during the hottest weather. The view is very extensive and beautiful. The park is handsomely laid out, is but 21 miles from Jersey City, and the proceeds of this sale are to be used to beautify and improve it. Maps, free tickets, and full information may be had at the office of the Association, No. 155 Broadway, Room No. 18.

PROPOSALS.

PROPOSALS FOR ENVELOPES.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, April 5, 1869.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at this Department until May 21, at 3 o'clock P. M., for furnishing envelopes for the official use of Postmasters during a period of two years from the 1st of July, 1869. The estimated number of envelopes that will be required annually is as follows:

Class No. 1, 1,000,000, more or less, 3½ by 5¾ inches.
Class No. 2, 4,000,000, more or less, 3¼ by 5½ inches.
Class No. 3, 7,000,000, more or less, 3 by 5 inches.
Class No. 4, 700,000, more or less, 4 by 6 inches.
Class No. 5, 200,000, more or less, 4½ by 10½ inches.

For Class No. 1, an ordinary quality of buff or yellow manila paper, of a size to be made from the sheets from red, blue, green and buff or cream-colored paper, as may be required, of approved quality.

All the above-described envelopes must be made in the same form and pattern as those now supplied from the contract, and must have such printing upon the face as may be directed by the Post-master-General. They must be bunched in packets of twenty-five, packed in pasteboard or straw boxes; each to contain not less than 250 envelopes of letter size, and 100 each of extra letter, official, and extra official sizes, or such other number, as may be required; the boxes to be wrapped in strong paper, so as to bear transportation by mail, for delivery to Postmasters. When required to be delivered at the Department, they must be put up in boxes of 1,000 each.

When 3,000 or more envelopes are required to fill the order of a Postmaster, they must be put up in strong wooden boxes and properly marked, but when less than 3,000 are required, proper labels of direction must be placed upon each package by the contractor; the whole to be done under the direction of an agent of the Department.

The envelopes must be furnished in such quantities as may from time to time be required to fill orders of Postmasters or by the Department, and be delivered either at the Department, or at any city where the proposed bidder resides, or at the envelope agency, or at this Department, as the Postmaster-General may direct, free of cost for packing.

Bids are also invited for 60,000 envelopes, more or less, made from the best quality of white or buff paper, 4 by 9 8-10 inches, and to be printed in the manner prescribed by the Department, for use in the Dead Letter Office and at the Stamped Envelope Agency in the City of New-York. These envelopes, to be delivered in good order, free of cost for packing, both at the Agency in New-York and to the Department at Washington, D. C., in quantities as from time to time may be ordered.

Separate proposals will be considered for furnishing 750,000, more or less, annually, of "Registered Package Envelopes," of a size to be made from the best quality of Manilla paper, with such printing on the face as may be required by the Postmaster-General, and STRIPED BOTH ENDS, OVER THE FACE AND BACK, LENGTHWISE, IN RED, the same to be put up in pasteboard or straw boxes; each containing 200, and packed in wooden cases in quantities of 4,000 or 5,000 each, for delivery at the Department, or to Postmasters, as may be directed, free of charge for packing.

All envelopes embraced in this advertisement required for delivery at the Department are to be conveyed free of cost for transportation, free of charge for delivery to Postmasters to pass as mail matter.

The first delivery of envelopes specified above to be made on or about the 1st of July next.

Specimens of the different kinds of envelopes for which proposals are invited may be seen on application at the principal Post Office, or at the Department.

Bidders are required to furnish specimens of the envelopes they propose to supply; and no bid will be considered unless offered by envelope manufacturers, accompanied by such specimens of manufacture.

The price bid and the quality of samples submitted will be taken into consideration in awarding the contract.

Bonds will be required for the faithful performance of the contract, and all payments under it will be made quarterly.

The Postmaster-General reserves the right to reject any or all bids, if deemed compatible with the public interests.

Bids must be indorsed "Proposals for Office and Returned Letter Envelopes, &c.," and "Proposals for Registered Package Envelopes," as the case may be, and addressed to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General.

JOHN A. J. CRESWELL, Postmaster-General.

POST OFFICE, NEW-YORK, MAY 10, 1869.

Under the authority of an act of Congress and by order of the Postmaster-General, sealed proposals will be received at this office until SATURDAY, May 15, for the following described uniform Green to be worn by the letter carriers of this City during the Summer months:

Frock—Coat, single-breasted, skeleton sack, of gray flannel, terminating two-thirds the distance from the top of the hip-bone to the knee, with lapels, (medium roll) made to button one button on each side and one on left breast; coat to be cut on each side and cut on left breast; coat to be bound entirely round with plain black alpaca binding, one inch wide, put half over edges, and three buttons of pearl or vegetable ivory down front.

Pants—Same material and color, with stripe of black alpaca binding, one inch wide, down outside seam.

Vest—Vest, same material and color, bound same as coat, with collar cut to roll, same height as coat, and five regulation buttons down front.

Fourth—Samples.

The price bid and the quality of samples submitted will be taken into consideration in awarding the contract and bonds will be required for the faithful performance of the same.

The Postmaster reserves the right to reject any or all bids, if deemed compatible with the public interest.

Bids must be indorsed "Proposals for Summer Uniform for Letter Carriers, New-York Post Office," and addressed to A. H. JONES, Postmaster.

EQUAL RIGHTS.

Another Interesting Debate by the Female Suffrage Agitators.

MORAL MAPS AND CELESTIAL KITES.

Propositions to Throw the Negro Overboard and Advocate Only Woman Suffrage.

The Equal Rights Association began its second-day's session at Steinway Hall, at 10:30 A. M., yesterday. As on Wednesday, the audience was very large, the greater proportion of the sitters being ladies. The proceedings were of a livelier character than those of the first day, and the friendly tilts that took place between the speakers were highly enjoyed by the spectators. The business was opened by the reading of letters sympathizing with the woman's rights cause from JOHN STUART MILL, WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON, Hon. JOSIA A. GRISWOLD and others. Miss LUCY STONE then spoke briefly and eulogistically of the action of Mrs. FRANCES D. GAGE and 172 women in Vineland, N. J., who, at the last Presidential election, marched to the polls and demanded that their votes should be received.

Miss ANTHONY then read a letter from Mrs. MARIE GOEGY, of Geneva, Switzerland, President of the International Association of Women, asking the colleagueship of the women of America in securing for their European sisters equal rights with men. The Convention thereupon resolved that an address be sent from the women of America to the women of Europe, setting forth the sympathy of the former with the latter in their efforts.

Miss ANTHONY gave a history of the obstacles she encountered in establishing the Revolution newspaper, and lauded GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN for having furnished her with the necessary pecuniary means in this respect. She considered him as almost sent by God for that purpose, and cared not what his opinions on other subjects were. She then read the prospectus of a new paper, the News Zeit, to be started in the West to advocate woman's rights among the German population. The Finance Committee then, by request of Miss ANTHONY, passed through the audience to collect funds to keep the Association afloat during the coming year.

At this juncture there came, as the front of the stage an individual, named RAYNES, who hailed from Michigan, and who commenced an incoherent rambling speech concerning woman's rights, the abolition of capital punishment, the national debt, vegetarianism and several other topics, the adoption of which he deemed essential to the well-being of humanity. He enrolled in view of the audience a large map, having on its face several forms and figures, which were hieroglyphics to the audience, but which he would explain, so that they might learn how to progress in the way of goodness, virtue and eternal happiness. Much confusion took place when the erratic individual's queries were discussed, and there were shouts of "Sit down," "Dry up," "Go on," &c., which seemed to disconcert the Michigander. Mrs. STANTON and several others gathered round him and besought him not to preach his views on the audience, who had no desire to hear them, and finally he was persuaded to take a back seat until he had declared, however, that the Convention was a decided missionary institution.

Mr. J. W. STILLMAN, of Rhode Island, then addressed the audience, giving a summary of the legal disabilities under which woman labored, in both the Old World and the New, and a history of the reformatory measures that have been enacted in behalf of woman.

On motion of Mrs. LIVERMORE, of Chicago, it was resolved that all future speeches should be limited to ten minutes each. Mrs. LIVERMORE stated to say that she regretted to see that the reports of the Convention, as they appeared in the New-York papers, were garbled and insecurate; and that there was an evident design on the part of the Press here to throw ridicule on the proceedings. When the Convention met in Chicago, no such spirit was manifested by the Press of that city; they all gave accurate reports of what was said and done; but the New-York reporters had put utterances into the mouths of speakers that were never uttered at all, and had represented, as being present at meetings, persons who were not present at all. There were now present parties taking notes of the doings of the Convention for fifteen Western papers, and the reports in those papers would be accurate and free from any attempt to throw ridicule on the actions of the meeting.

Mrs. STANTON came forward in defence of the New-York reporters; she knew of not none of them willfully falsify anything that they had been accused of doing. Much of the action of Mrs. LIVERMORE in their statements was the result of inattention. She (Mrs. STANTON) had her remarks to apply to the reporters; they wrote just what they were bidden to write, what they were paid for writing; the fault did not lie with them, but with their employers.

Mrs. ERNESTINE L. ROSE remarked that, although Mrs. LIVERMORE had much to say in favor of Chicago reporters, she (Mrs. ROSE) regretted that she (Mrs. LIVERMORE) had not the praise where it was due to New-York reporters, for the best reporters in Chicago came from this City. To this Mrs. LIVERMORE made a curt reply, and the discussion was dropped.

Mrs. Dr. MERCY P. JACKSON, of Boston, then expressed her delight at the progress the cause of woman's rights had made of late. The abolition of slavery was, in her opinion, the most significant step in reform compared to woman's rights. She narrated the obstacles that she had met in her path while she was endeavoring to acquire a medical education, and urged all women to unite in removing the barriers that prevented the attainment of their full and perfect rights as the equals of men.

Rev. GILBERT HAYES, editor of Sion's Herald, was then introduced, but before he began to read FRED. DOUGLASS asked and obtained leave to read a set of resolutions. They were, in substance, that the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution, granting negro suffrage, was preeminent among all political reforms, and should be hailed as a step toward the attainment of the reform sought by this Convention—the securing of the ballot for women.

Rev. Mr. HAYES then addressed the audience, dwelling on the necessity of bringing to bear the moral influences possible in the purification of our political system, and chief among these he regarded the influence of woman.

It was then moved to adopt the resolutions offered by Mr. DOUGLASS, whereupon Mr. BLACKWELL said he thought the regular resolutions presented to the Convention yesterday by the Committee on Resolutions, should first be acted upon.

Mr. DOUGLASS did not like the phrase "regular." What resolutions, he asked, were regular? Those offered by him were before the Convention, and could be acted on forthwith. He did not see why the Convention should postpone the consideration of them simply because a committee had others to offer.

The question being put as to priority, however, the Convention decided to consider the resolutions of the Committee. The first and second of the series were adopted nem. con. The third resolution, declaring that the Convention had no desire to lessen the sanctity of the marriage relation, created some discussion. Mrs. LIVERMORE wanted it put in stronger language. As she said, this woman's movement had MORE wanted against the obloquy of being in favor of the free-love doctrine; she wanted this resolution to rebut that false charge to the fullest extent.

Rev. Mrs. BLACKWELL, speaking on behalf of New-England, agreed with Mrs. L. as to the necessity of making the resolution stronger on this point.

Miss LUCY STONE thought the resolution and the whole discussion concerning it out of place. The subject should not even be hinted in this connection. If any one said that the women who urge this suffrage reform had any affiliation with the detestable doctrine of free love, let the women stick in his throat. Let the women work on this or any other falsehood that may be strewed against the cause.

Mrs. E. L. ROSE objected to the resolution on account of its being in effect a plea of guilty. If a man stand in front of a place of ruin, he immediately look out for his good name. The prominent workers in this movement had been before the nation long time, and noted as such. Men were now present who were stained. If ever that their moral characters were stained. If ever, not the thing now, after thirty-three years of toil, and when successes are ready to crown their efforts, for the women who desired simply equal political rights for their sex, to come out and voluntarily declare that they were not properly entitled.

After further remarks by Miss SUSAN B. ANTHONY, the resolution was adopted. The other resolutions reported by the Committee were then passed on serially, and adopted.

Dr. BLACKWELL then read the following, which had been added to the series by the Committee since yesterday:

Resolved, That we recommend the men and women of every ward, town, county and State to form local societies for evening and engaging public assemblies for evening and engaging public assemblies for women, and to invite their enfranchised fellow-citizens to attend their conferences.

The resolution was adopted.

Mrs. E. L. ROSE offered a preamble and resolutions setting forth the inadequate pay received by working women, and recommending the agitation of a Convention, to report what measures are necessary for securing adequate compensation to women for work performed; also, to consider the formation of coöperative societies. The resolutions were adopted.

Discussion here arose as to the adoption of the resolutions just referred to, many contending that the question on their adoption was not fairly understood by the Convention. Mrs. LIVERMORE moved a reconsideration of the vote; she thought the subject out of place just now. Dr. HARRIS made a few remarks against reopening the question, when Mr. [illegible] rose to make a point of order, that it was not a proper time for such a proceeding. The President decided the point well taken. The question was then put on reconsidering the vote, and the motion was lost, the majority of those voting being against it. The question was then put on the adoption of the resolutions, and they were lost, the majority of those voting being in the affirmative.

Mr. DOUGLASS then read a series of resolutions adopted at a Working-woman's Convention in Boston, declaring the pay received insufficient to provide the wants of the laboring females in that city. These resolutions, he said, were sent by the Boston women to their sisters of New-York, to show the deprivations they were compelled to suffer.

It being now 1:30 o'clock, the Convention took a recess for an hour.

Just as the audience was leaving a Mrs. HILTON, of Boston, proceeded to read a long document, setting forth her plan for regenerating humanity. We learn that she pretends to have a celestial kite, by the study of which man may be enabled to enter the celestial realms. A crowd remained to listen and laugh at her; but finally she commenced, at the request of several ladies, to continue her reading. At this juncture the Michigan man with the map, who was stunned in his efforts to set forth his theories concerning the morning, presented himself, map in hand, and proceeded in the most incoherent manner to explain it. He contended that the Convention did not treat him fairly in refusing to hear him in the morning, and that they were unaware of how much they had lost in consequence, as he had the clay plan whereby men and women could make the world "all serene," and perfect happiness be secured to every son and daughter of Adam. Seeing that his remarks provoked much laughter, however, he finally subsided, not forgetting to inform the crowd that they had now lost a knowledge of the only means whereby the national debt could be paid.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The Convention met at 2:30 o'clock, and was first addressed by Miss EMILIE PECKHAM, who ably reviewed the question of woman suffrage, and was loudly applauded.

The resolutions of Mrs. ROSE relative to woman's labor and coöperative societies were then taken from the table. The first resolution was stricken out, and the other, relative to coöperative societies, adopted.

Senator WILSON, of Massachusetts, being in the hall, Mrs. STANTON called on him to address the audience. He complied, and made a short speech, in which he said the cause had his hearty sympathy, and that when the Sixteenth amendment came up in Congress for action they might count on having his vote for it "first, last, and all the time."

Mrs. ROSE claimed that New-York, and not Massachusetts, should have the credit of having sown the seed of suffrage reform, as the effort in behalf of woman's rights began here in 1837. She regretted that woman's rights were founded on the New Testament. That Testament was only 1,400 years old, but woman's rights were as old as woman herself.

Mrs. SARAH NORTON thought the question of the particular rights of working women had been postponed by the Convention unnecessarily; she would like to have it discussed now.

Miss ANTHONY called on Mrs. ELEANOR KIRK for an address. Mrs. KIRK, in response, said she had a preference for the Sixteenth (Woman's suffrage) amendment over the Fifteenth (negro suffrage) amendment. She gave an account of her late experiences in Fort-[illegible], where she had seen the lately-emancipated negroes. The negro man, she said, was a race of tyrants, like all men who are suddenly raised from servitude to freedom. The women were in a long been certain in their mastery, houses, they had superior chances for learning. Some of the men whipped their wives. A man servant in her sister's house made this a practice every Sunday night.

FRED. DOUGLASS defended his resolutions in an earnest speech, as also did Mrs. HARPER, (colored;) and Mrs. STANTON and SUSAN B. ANTHONY opposed their adoption. Considerable excitement and confusion arose toward the close of the session, the irrepressible C. C. BURLEIGH again making himself obnoxious and receiving a storm of hisses. Mrs. LIVERMORE said she always had fragged on Chicago, and after this exhibition of turbulence among the audience she should brag on it more than ever. The resolutions were finally laid on the table, and the Convention adjourned to meet again in the Cooper Institute at 7:30 o'clock P. M.

EVENING SESSION.

The evening session was held in the Cooper Institute, which was nearly filled.

Mrs. NORTON read a letter from JULIE FAYER, expressing sorrow at her absence, and regretting his inability to be present.

Mrs. LIVERMORE, of Chicago, then gave a brief description of the life of Mme. ANDRIER, a gifted lady, who, with her husband, was identified with the German revolution of 1848. On the termination of the revolution Mme. ANDRIER started a newspaper, was hauled, sled to France and subsequently to Switzerland, and last before the breaking out of the war had come back to this country. She served on General STORM's staff was present in many battles, and rendered important service to the Union cause. Mme. ANDRIER was then introduced to the Englishmen, and, after a brief address in English, she spoke at some length in the German language.

Rev. Dr. LOVEJOY, of New-Hampshire, told of the progress of the cause in his State. It was spreading, and would doubtless soon be the subject of as much consideration there as it is here.

Mme. DE HERTZAUX was next introduced, and spoke in the French language on the rights of women, the exclusive equality of the sexes, and the necessity that women should be free. She concluded by offering a series of resolutions, inviting the women of all countries to form a great league for the emancipation of women, and for the rendering of assistance to each other.

Mrs. STANTON remarked that this, if carried out, would be the grand Congress of nations of which they had heard so much. Men settled their difficulties by killing each other. The women would settle theirs in a grand Congress.

Miss ERNESTINE L. ROSE spoke next. She said they had full evidence that the world moved. Ever since she had been present (7 thrill. Ever and France, Germany and Switzerland. She stood before them to claim rights for her women. It was true that laws were being altered for the better, but it must be remembered that what one Legislature gives another may take away. There could be no security for the rights of women until they possessed the ballot—until they could say, "We will not submit to Congress; any one who will vote with man; but with bad principles. Man had enacted laws that stamped degradation on their wives, sisters and daughters. Men had enacted laws for the man and the brother. But women found out that there is a woman and a sister. She objected to the name of the Association, "Equal Rights." Congress evidently did not know what the word equal meant. She proposed to change the name to the "Woman's Franchise Association." About the meaning of this there could be no doubt whatever. She concluded by an earnest appeal for the cause of the poised that little talisman there would be lying and cheating and roguery in the Government.

Mrs. NORTON then read a resolution changing the name of the Association to that of the "Woman's Suffrage Association."

Miss LUCY STONE hoped the resolution would not be acted on at this meeting. She hoped they would wait until the black man had obtained suffrage. Until that time let their cry be "equal rights for all."

The President stopped the discussion by announcing that the name of the Association could not be changed without a month's notice being given.

Mrs. NORTON moved that the notice be given.

Miss ROSE explained that she by no means meant to exclude the black man overboard. She merely wanted the Association to have a name that could not be misunderstood.

Dr. BLACKWELL said he had lately returned from the South, and had found the whites in favor of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution, but that objected to all writing being extended from voting who had served in the rebel army.

Mrs. JOSEPHINE GRIFFING, of Washington, spoke in favor of Mrs. NORTON's resolution. Nothing could be lost by it and much might be gained.

Mrs. LIVERMORE, of Chicago, said a few remarks, in which she regretted the adoption of a long testimonial, and urging the very little about the woman's rights question. She had been with the majority of the ladies on the platform, but they were actuated in this question of the name by the majority of the ladies on the platform, but they were actuated in this question of the name by the wrongs of the women of Boston, and the 10,000 unmarried women of New-York, who were dragging out a miserable existence in poverty, misery and dirt. The ballot might not remedy all women's wrongs immediately, but it would place her in an independent position, the movement in favor of woman's rights was making good progress in the West. Next year they hoped to send a petition to Congress with a million names appended.

It was then announced that the next meeting of the Association will be held at 10 A. M. to-day, in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, and after some vocal and instrumental music by the HUTCHINSON family, the Convention adjourned.

Fire at Far Rockaway.

About 9 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon, a fire was discovered in the extensive bowling alley of the late JOHN MCCARTHY, at Far Rockaway, Queens County. When first discovered the flame was but small, and immediate efforts were made to subdue it, but without avail, and
